COLUMBIA WATER DEAL

Good Economics —Or Give-Away?

In view of widespread public interest in the proposed deal between the B.C. government and Kaiser Aluminum interests to build a water storage dam at the lower end of Arrow Lakes, the Times today publishes the first of three articles on the subject by Tom Gould, Times legislative reporter. The result of exhaustive research, the three articles will cover all ramifications and possibilities of the project and examine both B.C. government's argument for and the federal government's case against the plan.

MAP SHOWS locations of the three major dam sites on Columbia river system within B.C. which are mentioned in the article below.

By TOM GOULD, Times Legislative Reporter

The proposed construction of a water storage dam at Castlegar Narrows, at the foot of Arrow Lakes, by Kaiser Aluminum Co. is developing into one of the hottest political issues in decades.

In Victoria and Ottawa, legal authorities are thumbing through musty law books, politicians are penning speeches, U.S. businessmen, hydraulic engineers, construction officials, and the man-in-the-street are becoming embroiled in the controversy.

Simply, the water storage proposal is this:

Kaiser plans construction of a $25,000,000 low-level dam on B.C. soil to hold 3,000,000 acre-feet of water at the Arrow Lakes high-water mark.

The dam would enable the water flow down the Columbia to be regulated; it would ensure a year-round supply of $1,000,000.

Water Wasted at Peak Periods

Water pouring out of Arrow Lakes runs through the U.S. at the present time, but unless the flow can be regulated, huge amounts are wasted during high-water periods, and the U.S. generating plants cannot operate at peak capacity on a 12-month basis.

B.C.'s Social Credit government has given the project conditional approval, and is determined the deal will go through.

The Liberal government at Ottawa is just as determined to block it; Trade Minister C. D.

Queen Mother Concludes Triumphant Canadian Visit

By JAMES R. NELSON

Before leaving she had no engagements other than a small reception at Government House for members of the press and their wives. She enjoyed a quiet luncheon at the governor-general's residence before leaving for the airport.

The Queen Mother, gowned in white lace over crinoline with a printed maple leaf design, attended the Canadian

Vancouver Acts To Forestall Jobless Crisis

Situation Here
Not Critical

VANCOUVER (BUP) — George Hird, president of the construction and general workers' section of the Trades and Labor Council said today the government should lower the old age pension to 50 because after that age persons can't find jobs.

Compiled from CP-BUP Dispatches

VANCOUVER — A plea for a "Colombo plan" to help Vancouver feed its thousands of unemployed will be placed before the federal government Nov. 25 and 26 by the city, it was learned today. And, simultaneously, the Vancouver Trades and Labor Council wired Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent asking him to take immediate action about the unemployment situation on the West Coast.

Ald. Jack Cornett will carry the city's request to Ottawa as provincial labor, management and charitable agencies combine to tackle the problem.

The suggestion of a "Colombo plan" for jobless came from Ald. Anna Sprott, who said:

"I'm in favor of foreign aid, but the time has come when we must feed hungry people within our gates." She suggested Canada's food surpluses, now going in part to feed hungry millions in Asia, should be diverted to some degree to Vancouver.

NEARLY 18,000
Horace Keetch, National Employment Service manager here, said there were nearly 18,000 persons on unemployment rolls in the city at the end of October. Available jobs listed during the month totaled 5,400.

Premier Bennett has asked the Union of British Columbia Municipalities for a list of public works projects which would help ease the situation throughout the province.

Meanwhile, TLC secretary R. K. Gervin said the council was aroused at "the federal government's apathy in the face of rising unemployment."

WeatherShip Steaming To Stricken Freighter

U.S. Ship Breaking Open 840 Miles Off Flattery

The Victoria-based weathership St. Catharines left her assigned position on Station "Papa," far out in the Pacific, at 10 a.m. this morning to rush to the aid of a U.S. freighter.

The 7,000-ton Liberty-type Ss. P & T Trader cracked her hull in high seas and a North Pacific gale early today.

Her captain has radioed that emergency repairs were made, but the ship was barely making enough headway to keep into the wind.

However, St. Catharines this morning was fighting her way through heavy seas to stand by the damaged ship.

Messages picked up here by Gordon Head wirelessly indicate the weathership likely will stand by pending the arrival of two U.S. coast guard cutters rushing to her aid.

Coast Guard Requested Aid

The coast guard requested aid from St. Catharines, reported to be about 30 miles from P & T Trader, which is about 840 miles west by north of Cape Flattery. The cutter Kiamath was dispatched from Seattle to meet the freighter.

Coast guard officials said there was "no immediate danger." However, at press time the ship was still bucking heavy seas and winds of 50 miles per hour. The barometer was still falling, indicating rougher weather to come.

The coast guard said the first distress call from P & T Trader reported a nine-foot-long crack, extending from the hatch combing and down three side plates.

A later message said the crew had welded angle irons across the crack inside the hull.

The ship reported the crack was "working" (showing movement under the battering of the sea), but was not increasing in size.

Owned by Pope & Talbot Inc., San Francisco, she was en route to Yaquina Bay, Ore., from Japan, and is in ballast.

The local weather office received its last report from St. Catharines at 10 a.m., just before she left station. Winds were reported as having dropped to about 20 miles per hour, but a deep low pressure area extends over the eastern Pacific.

In January, 1952, Stenotown, sister weathership to St. Catharines, took part in a vain hunt for survivors of the sunken freighter Pennsylvania, which was of similar construction to P & T Trader.

Pennsylvania sustained a cracked hull in heavy seas. At first she reported "no immediate danger," but with dramatic suddenness her wireless operator sent the message, "Leaving now."

An intensive search over raging seas located floating debris and wreckage. But no lifeboats or survivors were ever found. Forty-six were aboard Pennsylvania when she went down.

A total of 48 officers and crew are reported in P & T Trader.

'Just Twiddling My Thumbs' Says Tongue-in-Cheek Duke

BIRMINGHAM (CP) — The Duke of Edinburgh today took note of a newspaper squabble over the duties of the Royal Family.

Speaking at a luncheon after a three-hour tour of a rubber factory here, he said: "It is always a pleasure to go round a happy works, which I have found this morning. . . of course, ladies and gentlemen, you know what I am doing—I am twiddling my thumbs."

The luncheon guests laughed and applauded what was an obvious rejoinder to an editorial Tuesday in the London Daily Mirror which said members of the royal family do a fine job of work when they go abroad, but asked:

Darning Needle Death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mysterious death of Peter L. Pivaro, 35, from a darning needle in the heart was a "homicide by a person or persons unknown," a coroner's jury held Tuesday.

Pivaro died last Wednesday, 26 hours after being admitted to a hospital with an apparent heart ailment. X-rays shortly before he died showed a 2½-inch needle had entered between his fourth and fifth ribs, penetrating his heart.

Guiseppi Sotgiu, Communist lawyer and party official, was accused of immoral acts as an outgrowth of a police raid on one of Rome's lush "houses of rendezvous" where wealthy Italians patronize prostitutes.

The development was particularly painful to the Reds since Sotgiu's voice was one of the loudest in condemnation of the Wilma Montesi sex and dope scandal through which the Communists attempted to wreck Scelba's government.

Sotgiu failed to answer a police summons to appear for questioning concerning his alleged acts against morality.

Life's Just a Bowl of Bananas

Samuel Q. Simian, prominent member of jungle society, and a leading light in Who's Zoo, entertained friends at Doncaster School this morning. Samuel is associated with the Dr. Ballard travelling circus, now showing at various schools in the Victoria area. However, with all due respects to Dr.

Ballard, Samuel says dog food is strictly for the dogs. "I'm the banana type, personally," he tells Barbara Evans (left), and Eric Kjekstad. The boss man of the circus, Lorne McMillan, agrees, although he sometimes suspects Samuel of playing a skin game at feeding time.

Russia Plans Defense Alliance As Counterpart to West's NATO

MOSCOW (UP) — There were increasing signs today the Soviet Union was preparing to set up a defense alliance of east European nations to counteract a West German army having security.

Creation of a narrow military grouping of several west European states, the chief military force of which would be a West German army having security.

Revanchist aggressive aims, can cause creation of a defense alliance of peace-loving European peoples to ensure their security.

Diplomatic sources said the Soviet was expected to call a conference of East European nations here Nov. 29 if the western nations reject the Kremlin's invitation to an all-Europe security conference, as expected.

(Communist broadcasts from Prague, Warsaw, Budapest and Bucharest said the satellite nations of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, and Romania already had agreed to send delegates to the Soviet-proposed conference.)

Diplomatic sources speculated the East European conference would result in some sort of east European collective security pact—formalizing the already intimate political and military relations between Russia and the east European nations.

Trud, official organ of the Trade Union Central Council, made it clear today that a "defense alliance" was in the works when it published an article by S. Vasiliev, secretary of the Moscow regional peace committee, saying:

Mr. Harris, who took over the finance portfolio last July, said he is also concerned over the corporation tax rate under which the federal government "takes away half or more of the rewards of hard work which leads to promotion."

"We will get together later to see what we can do about lower tax rates," he told the Canadian Tax Foundation.

While agreeing that rates are high and exemptions low, Mr. Harris added that tax rates must be high if the government is to find revenue to pay bills. But, he continued, "there is so much to be gained if we can preserve initiative and enterprise."

"It would be most unfortunate if prospects in this land of opportunity were dimmed by unwise government demands on the fruits of success in business and professional life—in fact, in any gainful employment."

U.S.S.R. AGREES TO BACK WORLD SCIENCE PARLEY

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Russia agreed today to take part in arrangements for an international scientific conference planned as part of President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace program.

Vishinsky declared he had the feeling that both sides are making every effort to eliminate their differences. He cautioned against speed.

Canada's Paul Martin, commenting later on Vishinsky's speech, said it "clearly advances the Russian position and has considerably narrowed the gap between us."

Here's What We're Paying

Just after Finance Minister Harris had told the Canadian Tax Foundation that he thinks taxes in Canada are pretty stiff, Revenue Minister McCann released in Ottawa today a report on what taxpayers have been paying recently. The following tables give the pertinent figures for Victoria and the Island:

GREATER VICTORIA (Breakdown for 1952-53)

FEDERAL INCOME TAXPAYERS—$1,210.
TOTAL INCOME—$104,900,000.
PAID INCOME TAX—$11,500,000.
AVERAGE INCOME OF TAXED PERSONS—$3,361 (Toronto $3,455, Vancouver $3,365, Montreal $3,438, Trail, B.C. (highest in Canada) $3,789).
AVERAGE TAX PAID—$369.

VANCOUVER ISLAND (Total Victoria Office Returns 1953-54)

TOTAL FEDERAL DIRECT TAXES—$22,781,000 (new high).
INCOME AND OLD AGE SECURITY TAX—$18,134,971.
CORPORATION TAXES—$3,626,848.
ON UNDISTRIBUTED INCOME—$106,980.
SUCCESSION DUTIES—$818,651.
NON-RESIDENT TAXES—$93,627.
INCOME TAX DEDUCTED AT SOURCE—$11,417,794.

BRITISH COLUMBIA
Total income and old age security taxes paid for the entire province was $127,366,015, an increase of $1,000,000 over the previous peak collection year, 1952-53, and almost double the $66,682,113 collected in 1948.

private business world, on which the government levies a 49-per-cent corporation tax.

Mr. Harris observed that the federal sales and excise taxes on widely-used commodities, such as cars, radios and television sets, add up to 25 per cent of the manufacturers' price. On other items, such as jewelry, confectionery and tires, they add up to 20 per cent.

Sales and excise taxes had an important place in any well-balanced tax system, he said, but "the rates should not get out of line with reasonableness."

On his first look over the tax system, he found it "awfully large" and filled with complexities and containing a "very deceptive law."

But what amazed him most was that Canadians allow the federal and other governments to "take away" from them nearly one-third of their incomes.

"This is a situation worth pondering," he said. "It is, of course, true that defense expenditure bulks large in the total, but even so, the figures do reflect an amazing propensity on the part of Canadians to allow or demand interference in their everyday affairs by governments."

DREW 'MUCH BETTER' HOSPITAL TELLS FAMILY

OTTAWA (CP)—The family of Hon. George Drew was informed by Civic Hospital today that the 60-year-old leader of the Progressive Conservative party "is very much better and showing considerable improvement."

Mr. Drew has been in the hospital in serious condition with meningitis since last Thursday. His temperature has been normal for the last day or two, it was reported.

Except for his first day in hospital, when the Opposition leader was visited by his wife and two children, Mrs. Drew has been the only visitor allowed.

Sheppard Lawyer Asks For Murder Weapon

Prosecution Challenged to Produce Surgical Instrument to Fit Bloody Imprint on Pillow

By H. D. QUINN

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—Defense attorneys for Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, accused of the murder of his wife, today challenged the prosecution to produce a surgical instrument to fit the bloody imprint found on the slain woman's pillow.

"I'd just like to see the surgical instrument that fits that imprint," Defense Counsel William Corrigan said before today's court session.

The prosecution was believed ready to advance the idea that the imprint was made by an instrument called a still, which is used to cut through plaster casts. It is about 14 inches long, made of steel and resembles, roughly, a pair of pliers. But no name has yet been offered officially for the mysterious instrument mentioned Tuesday.

The weapon used to kill Mrs. Marilyn Sheppard on the morning of July 4 has never been found, according to information now available. But Dr. Samuel R. Gerber, Cleveland's veteran coroner, testified Tuesday that the under side of Mrs. Sheppard's pillow bore the impression in blood of the instrument he believed was used in the bludgeoning.

"It is the imprint of what I believe to be a surgical instrument," he said.

Dr. Gerber, 56, has been coroner since 1937. He was the ninth witness called by the state and the most important so far to be called to the stand.

He faced exhaustive cross-examination today by Corrigan.

the white-haired chief of the defense legal staff.

The coroner produced the deathbed pillow Tuesday, plus color slides and black-and-white photographs of it. His testimony that the impression on it was that of a surgical instrument hit the courtroom with blockbuster impact. It had been the state's most closely guarded secret, perhaps its only secret.

The state charges Dr. Sheppard beat his wife to death after quarreling with her about his boudoir attentions to other women. The savage bludgeoning left 15 gaping wounds above her eyes and ears, cracking her skull in many places.

Strike Threat Ends At Seven CGE Plants

TORONTO (BUP)—A threat of strikes at seven Canadian General Electric plants ended today following the employees' decision to work another year without a raise.

A majority of the 5,600 workers, members of the independent United Electrical Workers' Union, followed their leaders' advice Tuesday in voting to accept a new contract at six plants in Toronto and one in Peterborough.

BRITISH PRESS IN FIGHT

Mirror, Telegraph Wrangle Over Royal Family's Jobs

LONDON (CP)—The Queen Mother's visit to Canada and the United States is still causing editorial repercussions in Britain.

One newspaper, the Daily Mail, says Commonwealth governments are considering a plan whereby governors-general would be "traded" among the dominions. This follows a proposal, given much publicity here, that the Queen Mother should be appointed Governor-General of Canada.

Two other papers, meanwhile, are exchanging discourses. The left-wing Daily Mirror, welcoming the suggestion of a Canadian appointment for the Queen Mother, said Tuesday the Royal Family should make more royal tours instead of "twiddling their thumbs" at home.

The right-wing Daily Telegraph, shocked, replies that this is a "stupid slander of some of the hardest-working people" in the world. The Daily Mirror, which thrives on controversy, comes right back with another editorial demanding "full employment for royalty."

ROYALTY BUSY

The mass-circulation Mirror lists a number of occasions when six, seven or eight members of the Royal Family were on hand to welcome visitors from foreign countries.

The Mirror editorial is said to have brought indignant telephone calls defending the Royal Family.

The Daily Mail story about the plan to exchange governors-general is not elaborated. Under it, says the Mail, the Dominions "would suggest the selection of governors-general from one another." In an accompanying story, written from Ottawa, correspondent Don Iddon writes that the Queen Mother's visit has been "one of the most successful Royal tours of all time."

CANTOR CLAIMS EX-STAR'S BODY

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The body of Charles de Haven, whose vaudeville act once was featured in the Ziegfeld Follies, lay unclaimed Tuesday in the morgue of general hospital—but not for long.

A reporter checking de Haven's early history called comedian Eddie Cantor in Palm Springs.

"I remember the act well," said Cantor. "De Haven and Nice, dancers. It was a good act. I played five weeks on the same bill with them in Providence and Boston in 1919. I'll see that he gets a decent funeral."

De Haven, 64, died of a hemorrhage in the hospital Monday.

European Research Scientists Develop New Formula
Small Supply Reaches Canadian Market

When Diva Laboratories of Zurich, Switzerland, solved, after ten years of intensive research, the many diversified problems and obstacles that have confronted the processing of two vital substances, an entirely new field of treatment lay at the hands of their research chemists. Their products, now selling under the name of "P 99" have brought about some of the most staggering results in the treatment of certain skin diseases.

Today, and for the first time, people who are troubled with the distressing symptoms associated with hemorrhoids are now able to share the healing and soothing qualities that have been made possible through the intricate processing of Linoleic and Linolenic Acid.

So limited is the supply of this "P 99" formula, only a few drug stores are at present in a position to meet the demand (see listing below).

"P 99" Alginate (ointment) and "P 99" Sulgan (suppositories) are the newest product on the market today for this specific purpose.

new ESSO EXTRA WINTER GASOLINE

the gasoline that gives you protection against

- carburetor icing
- gas line freezing

Does your car stall when idling? Research now proves a major cause of this is ice in the carburetor and gas line! Yes, ice! Even at above-freezing temperatures—in fact up to 55°F.—ice forms. To overcome this, Imperial Oil developed NEW Esso Extra with special anti-icing qualities that prevent stalling.

This new gasoline also prevents gas line freezing... you no longer need to add remedies to the gas tank... or need run the risk of your car refusing to start.

If you stall, don't blame your engine until you try new Esso EXTRA

OTHER GASOLINES
Carburetor icing
a major cause of engine stalling

As you start your car, air is sucked through the carburetor and gasoline enters the air stream. As the gasoline evaporates, it chills the carburetor. Moisture in the air condenses on this chilled metal and freezes into ice, if the humidity is high and the temperature between 55° and 28°F. When idling, the ice forms a bridge between throttle plate and carburetor wall, the flow of the fuel mixture (see arrow above) is stopped... the car stalls.

NEW ESSO EXTRA
Prevents stalling caused by carburetor icing

New Esso Extra will not, of course, stop stalling due to mechanical defects but the special anti-stalling qualities of new Esso Extra prevent the formation of ice from the moisture in the air. The opening between the throttle plate and carburetor wall cannot become bridged with ice. The fuel mixture (see arrow above) continues to flow through the carburetor to give you smooth performance, free from stalling.

Juvenile Crime Not Increasing In This Area

There has been no marked increase in juvenile delinquency in the Greater Victoria area despite a sharp rise throughout B.C. in the past two years, it is indicated in a recently-completed report by the Victoria Council of Women.

Following a four-month study headed by Mrs. J. M. Thomas it was found that despite population increase there had been no comparable boost in the number of cases of indictable juvenile crimes in recent years. Delinquency in the Greater Victoria area last year was .4 of 1 per cent up to the age of 18. Throughout Canada in 1951 it was .3 of 1 per cent, compared with .6 of 1 per cent in 1942. The national figures were based on the 7 to 15-year age group.

Authorities Agree

Women's council findings here were based on interviews with school officials, juvenile officers and welfare groups. Juvenile offenders increased 45.1 per cent throughout B.C. last year compared with the previous year according to an RCMP report dealing with cases handled by the RCMP alone.

The women's group here made several recommendations on handling of the juvenile problem, including urging greater co-operation among agencies concerned so information and case histories could be pooled, and that the staff of the probation department be increased.

City police commissioner Gordon Carter said the juvenile delinquency situation in Victoria was no better and no worse now than it has been in the past two or three years, bearing out women's council findings.

Fort Langley was the first capital of the mainland colony but it lost its title to New Westminster, which in turn lost it to Victoria when the two colonies were united in 1866. It is expected that the provincial government will take steps to mark the centenary with official observances.

European Unity Stronger Than Ever After EDC Crisis, French Premier Says in Ottawa

OTTAWA (UP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France wound up a 30-hour visit to the Canadian capital today by assuring Canadian leaders his country was "firmly resolved to travel" the road to European union.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club of Ottawa attended by government and business leaders in the capital, the French premier said European unity had emerged from the recent crisis over EDC and the London and Paris meetings "stronger and more effective" than before.

He termed the recent Paris pact "outstanding progress which permits us to look forward in the near future to a united and strong Europe."

RESOLVED "In overcoming the psychological, political and historical obstacles to a genuine Franco-German co-operation, the London and Paris agreements have, in effect, shown the road on which France is today firmly resolved to travel, that of consolidating in mutual confidence, the European union."

"The Atlantic community has merged stronger from this test," he said, "which enabled us to assess the striving for solidarity and understanding which everyone showed in the quest for a common solution. The result has, I hope, led us to forget the

The by-election there was ordered when the Nova Scotia Supreme Court declared the outcome of the 1953 provincial election void because of voting irregularities. At that time Liberal Alfred Reid was declared the winner by a one-vote margin over Conservative Ernest Ettinger.

The same two candidates ran Tuesday, and two hours after the polls closed Reid was named winner by one vote—2,260 to 2,259. But returning officer J. R. Campbell discovered a miscount at Nine-Mile River and declared a tie. CCF candidate Malcolm Wheadon polled only 132 votes.

An official recount will be made Nov. 25.

The Liberal party had no difficulty in retaining Inverness riding in the third by-election.

JUST for the RECORD

RE-SALES: In London, Eng., undertaker Alan Morgan, 26, faced trial today on a charge of stealing four marble grave-stones worth $56 from a cemetery.

Police said they found the second-hand gravestones at Morgan's shop where they had been buffed up to look like new.

TUT-TUT: In San Francisco Federal Judge Oliver Carter rejected a plea yesterday from Alcatraz prison convict Morris Thomas, 32, that he is receiving "cruel and unusual" punishment.

Thomas complained that he is not getting ice cream, pie, cake, tobacco, exercise, church services or new magazines and said he only gets one bed sheet a week.

CUTE: In London, Eng., Geoffrey Fisher, the archbishop of Canterbury, said last night some Americans didn't quite understand his breeches and gaiters when he visited the United States last summer.

He told the annual Pilgrim dinner here: "As I was standing on a street corner in New York clad in Episcopal uniform a man stopped, looked me up and down, fixed his gaze on my gaiters and said in a friendly way, 'What's the cute idea?'"

Servatius is president of a plating firm. The job cost him $350, he said.

DE-WIGGED: In Toronto, Beulah, an aging blueblood, was selected as a beauty queen yesterday despite the fact she lost her wig before the judges.

Beulah was lined up with other Holstein contestants when a judge gave her tail a friendly pull and the end came off.

The other judges decided the false switch her owner had added only enhanced her natural charm and she was voted one of the three best aged and hindered cows in the lineup.

Ike Forestalls Strike Threat On Six Airlines

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower intervened to forestall a major airline strike threatened for next Friday. The president announced he would create a three-man emergency board to investigate the dispute. His action, under the Railway Labor Act, postpones for at least 60 days the strike ordered by the AFL Machinists Union against Capital, National, Northwest, Trans-World, United and Eastern Airlines.

Under the Labor Act the board has 30 days to make its findings. No strike is permitted for another 30 days after it reports to the president.

William Caron, Victoria, was granted freedom on $250 bail when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to impaired driving. He was arrested in front of the police station on Fisgard Street, Tuesday night. Magistrate H. C. Hall remanded him to Monday for trial.

Why Conservatives Quarrel

BY THEIR RECENT DELIBERATIONS the rebellious British Columbia Conservatives have widened their breach with the national party and its leader, Mr. Drew. The want-of-confidence vote on Mr. Drew's leadership, by the party executive passed at Vernon some months ago, was not repealed by the convention at Vancouver. The rebels still demand a national convention to choose a new leader.

Unfortunately the latest proceedings took place while Mr. Drew was gravely ill in Ottawa but this unhappy conjunction of events cannot be blamed on Mr. Drew's critics, who had planned their meeting before he fell ill; and all Canadians will hope that a gentleman who already has served his country with outstanding patriotism will soon be restored to health and further service.

The real cause of the feud which has split and perhaps wrecked the Conservative Party of British Columbia did not appear publicly at the recent Vancouver meeting.

It is said that the provincial wing of the party has rebelled because it refuses to accept the domination of the eastern Conservatives.

The three Conservative members of Parliament from British Columbia reply that Mr. Deane Finlayson, the provincial leader, and his friends are trying to usurp the proper functions of the national leadership and organization. But these are polite phrases to cover a much deeper quarrel.

The rebels in fact are opposed to Mr. Drew because they suspect that he is preparing at some future date to effect some kind of alliance with Social Credit and naturally Social Credit is anathema to them for it ruined their provincial party under the leadership of apostate Conservatives.

For this suspicion the rebels undoubtedly have good reason.

The national Conservative leadership has abandoned any hope of carrying the western provinces, since the party is weak in Manitoba, almost non-existent in Saskatchewan and Alberta and won only three seats in British Columbia at the last national election. Its strategy is to hold or expand its strength in Ontario, break into Quebec if possible, improve its position in the Maritimes and accept defeat in the west.

To the national leaders Social Credit is essentially a conservative movement with a few harmless monetary trimmings which will disappear in due time. Therefore, if the Conservative Party can come within striking distance of a parliamentary majority at some future election it is assumed that it can count on the support of Social Credit members in the House of Commons, by formal coalition or private arrangement (as Mr. Mackenzie King, for example, was supported by the farmers' Progressive Party in his first years of office until he engorged it.)

The British Columbia rebels evidently fear such a marriage of convenience more than they fear an open schism in their party. But by their quarrel with the national leaders they have played straight into the hands of Social Credit here and rendered Mr. Bennett a priceless service.

The national leaders, on the other hand, seem to have miscalculated Social Credit strategy and underestimated the ambitions of Mr. Bennett, Mr. Manning, Mr. Low and the group of highly practical politicians around them.

These gentlemen do not appear to be looking for any future agreement with the Conservative Party. They intend to capture Parliament themselves. Thus the right-wing vote of Canada is split between a Conservative rump so far unable to break effectively out of Ontario and a Social Credit movement (really a rebellion from within the Conservative Party) which has been unable to break eastward past the border of Alberta.

Some Liberal politicians may relish this split in the opposition. No thoughtful Canadian can regard the malaise of the great Conservative Party with anything but regret and alarm. It weakens the parliamentary system and undermines the whole democratic process.

The Royal Navy Adjusts

AN INTERESTING SIDELIGHT on the recent appointment of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten to be First Sea Lord is seen in the inner turmoil which currently is reported to be shaking the Royal Navy.

The advent of the atomic and hydrogen bombs brought a quick reassessment of the relative values of the armed services in Britain. Necessity for protection of the Channel from possible Russian armies made obvious the need for a large army. But protection from the new bombs clearly called for increased air strength, both as a defensive and a retaliatory arm.

This emphasis brought reduced importance to the navy. Indeed, one school of British military thought appeared to favor a heavy dependence on the United States for naval protection, while the United Kingdom went all-out on land and air defenses.

Such a position, of course, was intolerable to the officers of the traditionally senior service. But they have fought a losing post-war battle against decreased budgetary appropriations for naval armament.

Opposition to retrenchment has permeated all the higher levels of the navy, including the top post. It is reasoned that an orthodox First Sea Lord must share these feelings, with all the friction and upsets that are implied. Hence the appointment of a man who has a name for an orthodoxy, and whose command of land as well as sea forces has broadened his outlook.

At the same time, Lord Mountbatten is not the type of leader who would "preside over the liquidation" of his command. And there are strong arguments against too great a dependence on U.S. naval strength. It may be taken for granted that the Royal Navy will continue to play a vital part in the defense of Britain. But under Lord Mountbatten a greater degree of integration may be possible, and a resurgence of spirit among officers and personnel who at the moment may be feeling a little badly done by in their adjustment to the atomic age.

'And Then Is Heard No More'

LIONEL BARRYMORE, AN imposing figure in the high tradition of character acting, has played his last scene. The second of a great stage family of three, two brothers and a sister, has made his final curtain call, passing, as the report notes, with a soliloquy from Macbeth echoing in the air about him.

At his age, 76, and in his failing condition of health, Mr. Barrymore's death could not have been unexpected. He had been a rich life, a career of many accomplishments. At his best he had touched the sublime in his particular art. And from those performances which have graced many stages and many screens his own memorial has been composed.

Not Just Because They're Women

THE PAST PRESIDENTS' council and executive of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club have endorsed the four women candidates now in the field for civic office.

The action taken by the club conforms to the organization's objectives. It insists that all members use the vote and it seeks to encourage the election of women where they have qualifications in no way inferior to male candidates. The club members do not, it is important to note, urge the election of women merely because they are women.

The club is to be commended on its action. In Victoria's civic life, two women only have served on the city council—Alderman Margaret Christie, who is retiring this year, and former Alderman Hilda Baxter who resigned her seat some years ago. Several have been members of the school board, where they have rendered highly valuable service.

The Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club have pledged their support to two newcomers in the council field, Mrs. W. H. Wilson and Miss Jennie Hall and to two trustees already experienced in educational work, Mrs. D. P. W. Maunsell and Mrs. W. W. McGill.

The endorsement will doubtless carry substantial weight, not particularly as a rallying point for women voters intent on marking their ballots for women but for four candidates who could give Victoria good representation.

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

MY son John, aged 13, was asked to prepare a short speech to deliver to his classmates, as part of his education. It is widely believed that public speaking will benefit the speaker. I don't know about that, I have seen it corrupt many a speaker's soul, supposing he had one to begin with. (Some of us believe that souls are given only to those who want them; the human being is fitted FOR, but not always WITH, a soul.) In any event, if public speaking does the child speaker more harm than good, at least it teaches the rest of the class to endure almost anything, a training otherwise neglected in a soft and sissified age. Coolness under fire!

THE boy asked his parents what a good topic would be. And his male parent, who always has about 586 topics on hand and few takes, said "Why not give a talk on Things I Saw on My Paper Route? You must have noticed many queer things about family life as lived in this neighborhood. In fact, your daily walks must be a panic and a riot. Sometimes, I will bet, you are too sick with laughter to carry your bag of papers."

He agreed there was something in this, but said he had decided to speak on White Mice. In vain did I point out that people and white mice have a great deal in common. He said he planned to ignore people entirely and speak on mice as a distinct civilization peculiar to mice. I said that suited me fine. Perhaps he would care to speak on some amazing differences between homo sapiens and mus musculus... differences that might not at first strike the casual beholder. He more or less told me to refrain from further suggestions (forgetting who had asked for suggestions), and he more or less indicated that I was free to leave the rostrum and resume my seat.

ALL the same, I think it a pity to waste the paper-boy theme. Heavens, an observant paper boy with a gift of expressing himself could write a whole volume of memoirs. For a total of only two weeks or less this autumn I delivered my son's papers myself... his brother and his two sisters helped at times, but not much. Lots of parents have delivered their son's papers, but I bet I went them one better, and maybe five or six better.

WELL, as I say, I delivered papers for less than two weeks this fall. (Not The Times though.) Yet even I have noticed a few things about the neighbors on my rounds. And a boy often notices more things than I do, or at least different things. Too often I am lost in what the silly phrase calls "a dream world of my own". (Wouldn't you rather be in a dream-world of your own than in a dream-world of somebody else's? Most progressives and idealists want me to live in the latter, or be shot as anti-social.) But in spite of my portable dream-world, which wraps me about like a cloak, I got several distinct impressions while entering and leaving people's property on my lawful occasions.

FOR example: one of my customers is a retired magistrate from one of the crosser, bristlier parts of the world, and in his garden I was saddened to observe a poor little beech tree which he has pruned most sternly and even savagely. Why prune a beech tree at all? you will ask. That just shows you have never been a retired magistrate from the outposts of Chili Con Carne... or wherever he held sway... Patum Peperum, most likely. After a lifetime devoted to putting your foot down, it must be very hard to find nobody to correct except a few trees and shrubs. I mean, to correct without their answering back. I can just imagine him, saying to the beech tree "I shall have to make an example of you, young Master Beech Tree. We can't have that around here, you know. I must be cruel to be kind." Chop, chop, snip, snip.

AND let's see what else. Well, there was the house where the beds were never made... at least, not the ones I could see through the windows. It is possible they were kept unmade in readiness for some sailor sons who might come home at any time and who liked their beds unmade. One has no right to jump to conclusions and go condemning anyone (as the magistrate remarked to the young beech tree). And the house where the woman came out to meet me, after about my fifth call, and said "Are you, our regular paper boy?" Since my first childhood is well behind me, she must have thought me in my second. And creaky, the dogs.

I used to like most dogs before I became a paper boy. Perhaps I didn't like all dogs as such, any more than I like all men as men, but I liked hundreds of individual ones... and not always for their virtues alone, either, but for faults and virtues nicely blended, as with men again. Now I am not so sure I think I hate them all, and just on behalf of the few that menaced me and the one that bit me. When the one bit me, I said to its twelve-year old owner "Hi, your dog bit me," and she said "Good," and I asked why, and she said "Proves he's a good watchdog." Not without heat I said "It proves he's almost as stupid as you are, your repulsive little gargoyle. He doesn't even know the difference between men delivering things and men taking things away." I dare say I have lost a customer.

BUT THE PUBLIC STILL PAYS

Major George Nicholson, Mr. Frank Kelley, and many other well informed authorities, have been writing for years of the vast undeveloped wealth of the long West Coast of Vancouver Island. Roads, the arteries and veins of new life, are essential to development here. But roads cost money. The province of British Columbia is huge. All of it is hungry for roads. In the result our West Coast—as many other districts in the province—has had to wait.

Now Mr. R. E. Sommers, minister of forests, brings forward a plan which I suppose is supplemental to Mr. Gagliardi's road program, but no doubt approved by him, to use part of the great forest wealth of the West Coast to build these long and much needed road arteries. This is plain justice because our West Coast has paid into the provincial treasury enormous sums of money mostly in the way of timber royalties and, so far as I know, received little for the taxes it has paid.

The new plan also seems sound economy and very good sense. All British Columbia will benefit.

The roads are to be built by logging companies. This will ensure they will be sturdy, well drained and well graded. But they will be open to the public as well as to the logging companies.

They must, of course, be wide enough to allow cars to pass logging trucks safely. Areas suited either for farming or industry, including the smaller logger, can be made available to farmers and business.

Branch roads to the fine beaches and natural beauties of these regions will add to the attractions of the island for both residents and visitors.

A new and promising era for the West Coast is made possible.

NO ROOM IN THE INN?

Some years ago, when I was living in Vancouver, I used to read with interest letters to your paper or to the Vancouver Sun from time to time by people with some special problem. And I remember that through your kindness in printing them in your columns many of those letters came to the notice of some interested person or persons who were able to extend a helping hand to the writer concerned.

With this in mind, I am writing to you now, sir, about a problem that confronts my husband and myself.

My husband, aged 44, and a native of Hastings, Sussex, was discharged from the Royal Air Force in August of this year after serving 26 years in that branch of the armed forces. He was an equipment officer, holding the rank of WO1, and he left the RAF with the very best of references and testimonials.

We emigrated then, with our young son, to my native Canada eager to make our home in this great country and confident that my husband would find suitable employment here without too much difficulty. But in the three months we have been in Canada, he has not been successful in finding work at all in western Canada. Meanwhile, we must keep drawing from our small savings to meet rent and food and other expenses.

We are both becoming very discouraged now. And my husband is seriously considering returning to England where he is assured of a position with the British civil service.

To me, it does not seem fair that a man who has served his country faithfully for 26 years in all parts of the British Empire, and who has been recommended for the Queen's Award in the coming New Year's honours list in recognition of that service, should find it necessary now to turn his back on Canada simply because he cannot find civilian employment here.

I feel therefore that if his case could be brought to the attention of residents of Victoria and vicinity through your paper, perhaps some employer in that part of Canada could find a place on his staff for a man with my husband's qualifications and experience.

MRS. FRED H. BRYANT.

359 4th Street, Medicine Hat, Alta.

THE LATE GEOFFREY E. ASHTON

On behalf of the relatives in England and the many friends of the late Mr. Ashton, I would like to thank those residents of the Sooke District (where he had resided for over 20 years) who so kindly participated in the funeral arrangements—particularly the members of the Legion Branch, who acted as pallbearers.

The numerous floral tributes with the accompanying expressions of sorrow at Geoffrey Ashton's untimely passing, can well be summed up—

"In memory of a Grand Person, A Gallant Soldier, an excellent Police Officer,

And a Sterling Character throughout, We will miss him beyond measure."

SINGING COMERCIALS

What have we done to deserve those sickening singing commercials? They have become so crazy that everyone is disgusted with them.

Our Canadian way of life is a phrase we hear again and again. Tell me, are singing commercials a sample of it? To think that people get paid for doing things that are an insult to any listener!

Come along, fellow Canadians, voice your protest about these, and get them off the air. I guess they are trying to send us crazy too. Nursery rhymes and war songs, what a mixture! How foolish can people become?

Yes, we are asking for sanity over the air. Shouting announcers, phony accents, products mentioned seven times, etc., etc. These folk are shameless. Wake up Canadians, and do your part.

TRUDY

Lining Up Against McCarthy

BY JOSEPH and STEWART

THE attitude of his fellow Senators toward Joseph McCarthy is interesting, and it sheds a good deal of light on the real nature of the struggle now going on in the Senate.

There is a small band of Senators—estimated between twelve and twenty—who will stick with McCarthy come what may. These men are variously motivated—by admiration for McCarthy's demagogic ability, by fear, and, of course, by cold political calculation. There are also, it should be said, at least a handful who genuinely like McCarthy and enjoy his company. Prominent among these are Jenner of Indiana, and Welker of Idaho. McCarthy's self-appointed floor manager in the present fight.

Then there is another group, somewhat larger, of Senators who desire only what McCarthy stands for but the man himself. This group would include, among the Democrats, men like Fulbright of Arkansas, Lehman of New York, Douglas of Illinois, and tradition-minded men like Duff of Pennsylvania and Cooper of Kentucky among the Republicans. According to those who know him well, there is reason to put the powerful and intensely conservative Mifflin of Colorado in this group—although he has never spoken out publicly against McCarthy.

Finally, there is—or was until recently—a very much larger group of men who have tried for a long time to pretend that McCarthy does not exist. Among Republicans in this category the three Republicans on the Senate committee—Watkins of Utah, Case of South Dakota, and Carlson of Kansas—are entirely typical.

HARD CORE

But the hard core of this group is found among the conservative Southern Democrats, especially the respected older men like George and Russell of Georgia. It is necessary to understand the attitude of these men.

To the true Southern conservatives, the Senate is a body of immense distinction. They are apt to call it, not simply "the Senate," but, "The Senate of the United States," and a man can hardly aspire higher than to be a "United States Senator."

But to these men, the Senate is not only for heroes and statesmen. It is also a club for old friends, made all the more agreeable by reason of the special Senate atmosphere—the snuff boxes, the black leather easy chairs in the Members' Lobby, the meaningless, traditional phrases like "My distinguished colleague."

Joe McCarthy, obviously, does not fit easily into this atmosphere. Indeed, he does not fit into it at all. But for a very long time the Southerners succeeded simply in disregarding McCarthy—there was nothing, after all, that could be done about him, so the next best thing was to pretend that he did not exist.

In the last few months, however, certain things have happened to shatter this attitude. Partly, of course, this is the doing of McCarthy himself. It is hard to disregard a Senator who calls a fellow Senator "a living miracle... without brains or guts," and under any circumstances it has become harder and harder to pretend that McCarthy does not exist.

But that is not all. Much as they may dislike their Northern colleagues, the Southern conservatives have a real feeling about the Democratic party. McCarthy called the Democratic party the "party of treason." Thomas E. Dewey came rather close to saying the same thing. And the line which Vice-President Nixon took toward the close of the campaign, in which he portrayed the Democratic party as the party of war and of "softness on Communism," really put the cap on it, as far as the Southerners were concerned.

COMPROMISE EFFORT

Nixon has been, of course, a leader in the effort to find some "compromise" on the McCarthy issue. To have a chance of success, any compromise plan must have some Democratic votes, to make up for the Republicans who will vote for nothing less than censure. The place to look for these Democratic votes was, obviously, among the Southerners and the conservatives.

The Southerners have now, in effect, flatly told Nixon and the other compromisers "no deal." They said "no deal" in the form of the eloquent speech by Sen. Stennis of Mississippi, calling strongly for censure on the grounds of "political morality." Stennis, himself a respected younger member of the Southern group, certainly discussed what he was going to say with the Southern leaders, and with Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson as well.

It is conceivable, but only just conceivable, that the Democratic lines will break. But if the Democratic lines hold on McCarthy, they may well hold on other issues as well. And this in turn suggests how much harm McCarthy, the darling of many conservatives, may have done to the old conservative coalition which has ruled the Senate ever since the war.

THERE'LL ALWAYS BE...

Of course, the airplanes are noisy, but then there are airplanes everywhere. It's like the electric pylons. When they started to put those up, everybody complained and said the country was going to the dogs. Now we don't notice them, and hardly anyone, other than small boys, even looks up at an airplane now. We are used to them as we are to girls wearing lipstick, only we still look at the girls. England has been going to the dogs ever since William the Conqueror came. But she has never reached them yet.

Fred Allen's Book

READING for pleasure seems to have become unfashionable. When a man wants entertainment, he can turn to TV and bring the stars of Broadway into his living room. If he reads at all (which is unlikely) he is advised to "read for profit," which means that he should wade through some dull tome in the unlikely hope that it will improve him socially, culturally, or financially.

The hell with it. The other day a book came in which promised nothing but belly laughs. I read it in three hours (with a TV set blaring in the same room) and, by actual count, rejoiced in 27 yocks. A yock, in the trade, is rated slightly higher than a boff; it is a good, clear bark, with the head thrown back, and expresses joy unconfined.

Keate

The book, of course, is Fred Allen's "Treadmill to Oblivion." It is not the definitive Allen autobiography. It covers simply the period 1932-1949, when the sour New England wit was making a whole nation laugh, but we must be grateful for small blessings. The book is largely made up of excerpts from his scripts, from old Lint Bath Salts show to the heyday of Allen's Alley and the exquisite rondo of the Bowery Bard, Falstaff Openshaw.

Mother sat there cutting her corn
While I tuned in H. V. Kallenborn.

Mr. Allen once described his métier as "... this rut, this drudgery, this gold mine." Undoubtedly he made a lot of money out of radio. But now he claws the air that fed him. Underneath the sparkling humor of this book there is a bitterness engendered by the pygmies who nibbled the comedian to distraction.

In particular, Allen is sour on the vice-presidents and the "molehill men" of the ad agencies, who clustered around his conferences. A "molehill man" is a vice-president who finds a molehill on his desk at 9 a.m. and has only until 5 p.m. to build it into a mountain. ("An accomplished molehill man will often have his mountain finished even before lunch").

One such executive, according to Fred, suffered from claustrophobia: "He had to stay out of Rhode Island. He always felt the state was closing in on him."

Allen is convinced that these men ruined him. Just when he had "Town Hall Tonight" rolling, an advertising man decided that it was corny and Allen was obliged to change the format. In the end came the give-away shows, of which the author writes:

"If I were king for one day, I would make every program in radio a give-away show; when the studios were filled with the people who encourage these atrocities I would lock the doors. With all of the morons in America trapped, the rest of the population could go about its business."

When Allen quit the stage to go into radio, the most popular comedian of the day was Eddie Cantor, whose jokes came to him ready made from an exhaustive card-index system—and these were not the sharpest edges ever honed.

Allen differed in that he wrote most of his own material, and created imaginary situations (like "Allen's Alley") which made certain demands on the intellect of listeners. Among his dossier of peccans was an armless sculptor named Handy Roger, who adopted a unique method: he put a chisel in his mouth and his wife hit him on the back of the head with a mallet. Another star in his circus was Professor Gulpo, who swallowed an umbrella; he was putting something away for a rainy day.

During the course of his phony feud with Jack Benny (for whom Allen reveals an astonishing affection), Portland asked Fred if Benny had committed any faux pas during a broadcast at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. This was Allen's reply:

"Coming out, Benny saw a lot of empty finger-bowls stacked up on a table. He'd never seen a finger-bowl before. He said: 'Gosh, the next war is going to be terrible. They're making trench hats for children!'"

Among Allen's happier memories is the broadcast which resulted in the longest laugh in radio—an estimated 40 minutes. Allen was interviewing a British expert on falconry named Capt. Knight, who brought with him an eagle named Mr. Ramshaw. "From the back," writes Allen, "he looked like Bernard Macfadden moulting."

The script called for Mr. Ramshaw to take off from Capt. Knight's wrist, fly around the studio, and come to light on a bandstand. But the eagle became confused and "with his talons clamping the air and lib" fetched up on a ceiling beam, where he "gave visual evidence that he was not a housebroken eagle."

An NBC executive blamed Allen for the ensuing pandemonium. The comedian wrote him a classic reply, which ended:

"I know you await with trepidation the announcement that I am going to interview Sabu with his elephant next week. Yours for a wet broom in 8 H on Wednesday nights."

When Doctors Seem Casual

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Many people with an incurable disease have complained bitterly to me that several of the doctors whom they have seen did not spend much time examining them, and dismissed them quickly, without suggesting much in the way of treatment, and not promising any improvement. Some of these patients were much angered by this sort of thing, and they remained angry even when, after spending thousands of dollars traveling about to big clinics and eminent specialists, they had learned that the advice of their home doctor was good.

Alvarez

His reason for not having examined them at length was that he had made the diagnosis at a glance or from the history, and was too kind and honest then to take money for what seemed to him an utterly useless and hopeless examination.

Unfortunately, many of these people who have complained to me have concluded that the remedy for what they had experienced was socialized medicine. They thought that perhaps some day, when the doctor is reduced to being a slave by his government, and has no rights, they can compel him to examine them, and to be interested, and to treat them at great length.

All of this is sad and most unfortunate because in so many cases the man who goes ahead and gives a most thorough examination may be the least sensible, the least able, and the least kind. It does not take any brains to order 50 tests, but it takes much skill to know what tests can be omitted and should be omitted.

SKILL, MONEY WASTED

To illustrate: when an unhappy mother brings me a Mongolian retarded child I know all I need to know the minute they walk into my room. Why then should I go ahead and take hundreds of dollars from perhaps poor people for a thorough overhauling with all sorts of X-ray studies of the skull, electroencephalograms, and laboratory tests for this and that?

I know that I probably should do this because if I do not do it the woman will go away dissatisfied or hurt or even angry at me. I might order the tests to save my reputation, or I might order them to save the reputation of medicine in general, or I might order them because that is the rule in my office or in the great institution in which I may happen to work. I might order them to make a lot of money, but then I'd lost my self-respect and perhaps soon my scientific soul.

Being made the way I am, I can't do otherwise than tell the poor mother that I am terribly sorry, but I know perfectly well what the child has, and I know that, as yet, experts know of no remedy that will make the child over.

He can be much helped only by good training. Since few people understand well the problems of medicine, I will not be at all surprised if the mother walks out of my office thinking me an ignoramus. That I do not mind; what distresses me much is that she may go out thinking that there is no heart or human sympathy in me; or that I am indifferent, or too lazy to attempt anything.

Every time when in this column I write as sympathetically as I can about psychosis, mental retardation or epilepsy I get a bunch of letters, some exhorting me as a terrible ignoramus; some saying, "You may have learned medicine but you know nothing about the human heart," and others saying, "How could you say such terrible things, that took all the hope and heart out of us?" The first two types of letters I do not much mind, but the third type distresses me much because I am the sort of man who would not willingly hurt anyone.

But here's my problem: Should I take the easy way out and please that little mother of the Mongolian child by ordering several hundred dollars' worth of tests? Should I waste her money, and when she leaves should I give her much hope? Should I say, "Keep searching for a cure?" Or to keep her hope should I, for months on end, give the child "shots" of thyroid substance or glutamic acid or something?

Read Pearl Buck's fine book about her experience with her child, going from doctor to doctor for several years before one man (a dear friend of mine who is honest and kindness personified) had the courage and devotion to tell her the truth. I would say to you good people who read this column, never assume that because a physician refuses to treat your child or to give you hope, he is lazy or uninterested or stupid or unkind. He may be the ablest and kindest man you have consulted.

ILL SEAMAN PICKED UP BY 'COPTER IN STRAITS

SEATTLE (AP)—A stricken member of a tugboat crew was picked up by Coast Guard helicopter Tuesday in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The Coast Guard said the owners of the tug Matilda Foss identified him as Lee Aker of Port Angeles. He was flown to Port Angeles by the helicopter and transferred to a plane for an emergency flight to Seattle. He was described as partly paralyzed after an acute illness struck him during the morning.

Sen. Hodges, Fairey Blast Socred Policy

Charge Premier Bennett, Cabinet Attempting to Embarrass Federal Govt.

Senator Nancy Hodges and Liberal MP Dr. Frank Fairey joined battle with Premier W. A. C. Bennett and the Social-Credit government Tuesday night at the annual meeting of Victoria Liberal Association.

"The pattern is beginning to emerge," said Dr. Fairey. "They will base their next election campaign on criticism of the federal government. They will say: 'We tried to do so much for B.C., but the federal government wouldn't let us do it.' 'They are asking us to do some things that are absolutely impossible.' 'I think the people of B.C. will just get sick of these jibes at the federal government.'"

"We saw more evidence of this pattern recently when Gagliardi (Works Minister Philip Gagliardi) was in Ottawa asking on behalf of this Social Credit government, which is so skillful and wealthy, help in provincial projects."

"While he was down there, the premier was making these nasty charges against Fisheries Minister Jimmy Sinclair—a man of whom all Canada thinks highly of," said Dr. Fairey. "Why? Because Mr. Sinclair said the Kaiser dam proposal is not in the best interest of the province."

Senator Hodges told the more than 100 Liberals attending the annual meeting: "I wish Bennett could put his head in the door and see tonight's turnout."

Freighter Stork Cheats Storm, Limp Into Port

CORNERBROOK, Nfld. (BUP)—The crippled freighter Stork limped into the Bay of Islands toward Cornerbrook today after her hard-working crew cheated a violent Atlantic gale.

The captain of the 7,000-ton Panamanian cargo ship ordered his crew of about 40 men to abandon ship late Tuesday because the sea was taking water faster than pumps could keep the holds clear.

The order was scrapped, however, and the ship steamed slowly into the bay on the west coast of Newfoundland from near South Head, where she was battered by a fierce gale last Monday. Twenty-foot waves pounded a large crack in her hull and deck amidships and she started to ship water.

SWEDISH DIVORCES

About 8,500 divorces were granted in Sweden in 1953, compared with 5,400 in 1943.

TWO-YEAR EXPERIMENT

Transplanted Glands Cure Young Woman

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Glands taken from a dead baby are apparently still living and working two years later in a young woman's body, two surgeons reported today.

They are the thyroid gland and the parathyroids, apparently the first case of successful transplanting of these glands for a long time.

The case was described to the American College of Surgeons in prepared papers by Drs. Julius A. Sterling and Ralph Goldsmith, of Albert Einstein Medical Centre, Philadelphia.

The woman, now 31, had her own thyroid and the adjoining parathyroids removed in 1941 because her thyroid was too active.

SUFFERED SPASMS

Later she began suffering from muscular spasms, tremors and pain due to lack of calcium, which is controlled by the parathyroids. An attempt at another hospital to transplant parathyroids in 1949 failed.

She grew worse, had to go to hospital as often as four times daily for calcium injections. She also suffered from lack of thyroid hormone.

Just two years ago she was given the glands from a baby who died at 21 days of age. The baby's parents gave permission for removal of the glands from the infant's neck within an hour after death. She has been free of disease complications ever since.

ELMER WHEELER

Top Salesman In U.S. Speaks Here Thursday

There's a man slated to speak in Victoria Thursday night guaranteed to put on an excellent show which could be titled "the life of a salesman."

But Elmer "Sizzler" Wheeler is more than a mere salesman; he is literally a salesman's salesman. Voted the United States' top public speaker by 500 long-suffering luncheon club audiences, the dynamic talker is being sponsored by the Victoria Sales Executive Club. His famous "sizzle" speech, delivered more than 5,000 times, will be heard Thursday at 8 p.m. in the S. J. Willis Junior High School auditorium.

Mr. Wheeler is the gentleman who parlayed the saying "sell the sizzle, not the steak" into a sales pitch which for years has had a nation listening attentively — and acting on his advice.

His 50-minute talk is packed with entertainment and highly constructive ideas aimed at individuals — who want "more money, more social success and more sales."

Tickets are available from sales club members or at Cec Fletcher's shop, Yates Street.

Catholic Rites For Barrymore Set Thursday

Interment in the "royal family" crypt in a mausoleum next to the chapel will follow.

Pallbearers will be intimate friends — George Tremblay, Neville Worger-Slade, Web Overlander, Stanley Campbell, William Ball and James Doane.

Trial of Accused Murderer Of Drummond, Family Starts

DIGNE, France (Reuters)—Gaston Dominici, crusty 77-year-old goat farmer, went on trial today charged with the strange triple slaying of Britain's leading wartime food expert, his wife and young daughter.

Sir Jack Drummond was shot in the back. Lady Ann Drummond was shot in the chest and Elizabeth, their 11-year-old daughter, was clubbed to death while running away from the spot where they had pitched camp while vacationing near the Dominici farm Aug. 5, 1952.

The farmer, father of nine and patriarch of the district, confessed to the crime, then

Supreme Court Dismisses Suit Against Hatcher, Mayor, Fire Chief Testify

Dismissal of a slander charge against Leonard Hatcher, former civil defense co-ordinator for Greater Victoria, was ordered by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in Supreme Court Tuesday.

The defamation of character suit was brought by Thomas A. Cresswell, a war pensioner formerly employed as caretaker at civil defense headquarters.

The 79-year-old plaintiff claimed Mr. Hatcher defamed his character during a heated discussion at the CD headquarters on June 9. His boss, he alleged, accused him of being drunk and said to him: "You are like all other Canadians; only fit to clean toilets."

Mr. Hatcher, who was recently discharged as civil defense chief, came to Canada from London, shortly after the war. Mr. Cresswell also claimed Mr. Hatcher fired him without just cause and he asked Mr. Justice Wilson to assess damages against the defendant.

Dismissing the plaintiff's suit, Mr. Justice Wilson said he disbelieved the evidence of Mr. Cresswell, particularly with regard to the alleged statement that "Canadians are only fit to clean toilets."

DISCOUNTS STATEMENT

"Mr. Cresswell tried to embellish his case by attempting to bring evidence that Mr. Hatcher slandered the entire Canadian race," said the justice. "I don't believe Mr. Hatcher made such a statement."

The trial saw Victoria's mayor and fire chief Frank Briers testify on behalf of the plaintiff with regard to the sobriety of Mr. Cresswell.

The mayor said Mr. Cresswell was not drunk on the day of the alleged offense.

Fire Chief Briers stated: "I've often seen Mr. Cresswell under the influence of liquor, but I can't say he was ever drunk."

Other witnesses included Roger Peachey, who was recently appointed as co-ordinator of civil defense to replace Mr. Hatcher. He said he was present during the discussion between the two men, but did not hear Mr. Hatcher slander Mr. Cresswell.

Other office staff workers corroborated Mr. Peachey's evidence.

In his defense, Mr. Hatcher denied that he had slandered the plaintiff. He also said Mr. Cresswell left his employment on his own accord.

Questioned with regard to the statement that Canadians were only fit to clean toilets, Mr. Hatcher replied: "If I had said that I would have placed myself in the same category, as I've been living here for a while."

George Gregory was counsel for Mr. Hatcher, while the plaintiff was represented by Alex Brethour.

CPO STURE JANSSON

Chemainus Cadet Leads Province In Examinations

CHEMAINUS—A member of the Admiral Malmgren Sea Cadet Corps here has topped the list of B.C. cadets who took a special course at HMCS Cornwallis this summer.

He is CPO Sture Jansson, who headed the list of B.C. cadets with an average of 97.6 per cent in the special quartermaster's course exams. CPO Jansson garnered further honors by placing fourth among the 150 cadets from all across Canada who took the examinations.

The special course included lectures and training in seamanship, navigation, pilotage, general construction of ships, and helmsman's duties.

CPO Jansson, 17, has been a member of the Chemainus corps for the past four years. Now living in Nanaimo, he travels to Chemainus every week for parades. He is now instructing other cadets. Last year he was named winner of the corps trophy as the outstanding sea cadet.

Thunder Rumbles As Freak Storm Pelts District

An off-season thunderstorm, which rumbled loudly over Georgia Strait Tuesday between 10 p.m. and 11 p.m., rattled windows in Greater Victoria.

The storm was brought about by moist and unstable air following passage of a Pacific disturbance over the area, according to weather office officials. The thunder was heard as far out as Langford and Colwood.

With the storm came petting rain and a west wind. One thunderclap at about 10.15 p.m. alarmed several Saanich residents, who mistook it for an explosion.

Saanich Voters Plan Expanded Organization

Saanich Voters' Association will seek to expand its organization throughout the municipality at a meeting to be held at 8 p.m. in St. Luke's Hall, Cedar Hill Cross Road, Friday. The association, formed early this summer to take an interest in the development of Saanich, plans to set up branch chapters in various parts of the municipality. Each chapter would have representation on the parent body.

English City Seeking Data On Centenary

Nanaimo Nears 100th Birthday

NANAIMO—Municipal council of Brierley Hill, Staffordshire, England, has cabled the Nanaimo Centenary Committee for information regarding the Princess Royal Day celebrations here Nov. 27.

The English city, near Birmingham, was the home of most of the 70 passengers who boarded the sailing vessel Princess Royal 100 years ago to make the long journey to Vancouver Island.

Plans are progressing for the pageant re-enacting the landing of the newcomers at Pioneer Rock, in the heart of the city's waterfront, and for the burying of a time capsule to be opened 100 years hence.

MANY TO ATTEND

More than 60 descendants of the pioneers, living as far away as California and Ontario, have written that they will attend the ceremonies.

A Hudson's Bay Company executive will dedicate the capsule at 2 p.m., and its contents will be decided shortly by a committee consisting of Archdeacon A. E. Hendy, Mayor George Muir, George Molecky, C. W. Nash and William Barraclough.

The show will be televised by CBUT in Vancouver.

EVENING CELEBRATION

A gathering will be held at the Plaza Hotel ballroom at 5.45 p.m. when the visitors will be introduced, and a dinner and cabaret will follow.

Volunteers have offered their cars to take visitors on a tour of the district during the afternoon, and special provisions have been made for the comfort and safety of older people who will attend the various ceremonies.

Regular Air Service To Alberni Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—The Air Transport Board has approved an application by Pacific Western Airlines for a license to operate a regular air service between Vancouver and Port Alberni.

The board's recommendation to Transport Minister Marler is for a Class 2 certificate, under which a company runs regular flights but not on a definite schedule. Flights may be cancelled at the carrier's discretion.

The board limited the license to a year, declaring it will then review the operation to determine if it proves detrimental to the business of Queen Charlotte Airlines running in the same area.

OTHER JUDGMENTS

In other British Columbia judgments made public today, the board:

1. Approved an application by Canadian Pacific Airlines to improve its service between Prince Rupert, Terrace, Smithers and Prince George. The service is to be stepped up from Class 2 to Class 1, making it a scheduled operation.

2. Denied an application by Queen Charlotte Airlines to run a Class 1 service between Vancouver, Kitimat and Terrace.

3. Approved a Queen Charlotte application to add Port Hardy to its existing Class 1 service between Vancouver and several other points.

4. Approved Queen Charlotte's request to serve Port Alice with a Class 3 service, on which flights are made irregularly.

Chemainus Couple Observes 65th Wedding Anniversary

CHEMAINUS—Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Patrick, Cedar Street, celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary last week.

Married in Galt, Ont., they came to Armstrong, B.C., in 1909, where Mr. Patrick was engaged in the plumbing business for a number of years. They have resided in Chemainus for the past eight years, making their home with their daughter, Mrs. M. Mead.

Mr. Patrick is 88 years old, and his wife celebrated her 86th birthday last Friday.

They have four daughters, two sons, 34 grandchildren and 32 great-grandchildren. Only local members of the family were able to be present at a supper party given in their honor, but among the guests were three daughters, five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Belmont High Parents Meet With Staff

LANGFORD—Parents of Belmont High School students and teachers have formed a new group to be known as the Belmont Parent Staff Council.

It is not a PTA organization because the majority of parents already maintain memberships in district PTA groups. Its object will be to furnish assistance to the staff and to further co-operation between parents and the school.

Officers are W. H. Parker, president; Mrs. J. G. Williams, vice-president; G. K. Wilson, secretary; and Mrs. V. Beaudin, treasurer. An executive consists of three members each from Langford, Metchosin, Colwood and Happy Valley districts.

The council met Tuesday night and will meet again Jan. 24. The plan is to have five meetings after Christmas on the fourth Monday of each month.

Already the council has voted $250 toward work on the school grounds, and provides a parent to serve with the principal and a school board member on the grounds committee.

The council also provides a $50 bursary, books for the annual prize-giving, and arranges the annual dinner for the graduating class.

Speedboaters Set 1955 Race Dates

B.C. region of the Canadian Boating Federation has set Vancouver Island racing dates for the 1955 season.

Inboard and outboard meets will be held May 22 and 23 at Victoria and Nanaimo; July 1 at Campbell River; July 16 and 17 at Sproat Lake; and September 5 at Victoria.

George Davis and Fred Graham of Victoria are members of the regional executive of the federation.

Burns Club Finds Concert Success

LADYSMITH—Burns Club of Ladysmith, sponsors of the recent appearance of Robert Wilson's White Heather Group, learned this week the show was a success "financially and otherwise."

St. Andrew's Day will be celebrated by club members with the showing of the film, "A Shot of Scotch," which had its premiere at the Edinburgh Festival and was shown to the Royal Family by command at Holyrood Castle.

U.K. Timber Officials Visit Island

NANAIMO—Keith Hillas, director, and Philip Reece, chairman of the board of the Timber Development Association of the United Kingdom, arrived here today to begin a good-will tour of the Vancouver Island timber industry.

They visited the Eureka sawmill and Harnac pulp mill this afternoon, and will be overnight guests of Canadian Western Lumber Company at Chemainus.

They will visit Nanaimo Lakes operations of Comox Logging and Railway Co. Ltd. Thursday, and will arrive in Victoria Thursday night.

On Friday the two British timbermen will be taken on a tour of the B.C. Forest Products mill in Victoria, and will meet Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Trade and Industry Minister, Ralph Chetwynd at 3 p.m. Friday. They will return to the mainland Saturday.

AUSSIE TANDEM TEAM OUSTS U.S. NETTERS

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—American tennis forces suffered another setback in the New South Wales championships today when Australia's Davis Cup tandem of Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad downed Tony Trabert of Cincinnati and Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., 3-6, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, in doubles.

Rosewall and Hoad moved into the final round against Aussie teammates Rex Hartwig and Mervyn Rose, who downed England's Roger Becker and John Barrett, 6-0, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, in another semi-final match.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Earl Whitehill died last month. The former major league baseball star succumbed from injuries received in an automobile accident.

Victorians will likely recall the feats of the former Detroit and Washington left-hander. He compiled an overall winning percentage of 218 victories and 185 defeats in an active major league career that spanned 17 years. He was regarded as a tremendous competitor who demanded that his mates put as much in the game as he did.

Dubbed "The Earl," probably because of his flare for flashy attire, Whitehill was known to have clashed physically with his own teammates. Neither were umpires spared his wrath when he felt so inclined.

We had the pleasure of meeting Earl Whitehill and talking with him. And it wasn't so long ago. That's why his untimely death strikes such a somber chord.

It was last year, in this month, that Earl attended the Western International Baseball League meeting at the Empress Hotel. He was acting in his official capacity as representative of A. G. Spalding & Bros., sporting goods manufacturers.

It was in a quiet corner of one of the hotel corridors that Earl was the central figure in an old-fashioned bull session. He had to be the central figure. He had that air of lordly manner about him; but one respected him for it.

The Cocky Kid Who Defied Cobb

The story in particular that comes to mind, which we think best typifies the Earl Whitehill the major leagues knew, concerns Earl's second season in the majors and his first and lasting run-in with Ty Cobb, the latter also a stormy petrel of a diamond age long past, but never forgotten.

Earl was telling of his now-famous clash with Cobb, then the Detroit manager, their tempers failing to mesh in a matter of policy—pitching policy as it concerned Whitehill on the mound, and Cobb, from his managerial post in centre field.

Matters had developed to a point where Whitehill, then only 23, got to know that Cobb was calling ALL pitches from centre field and whenever he found himself in trouble he found the curve ball being called for by Cobb.

Earl took violent exception to Cobb's habit of coming in from centre field and telling him how to pitch and the issue reached a head one afternoon when Earl got in a jam, and sure enough, as he related: "There was the signal for the curve ball."

Earl shook it off and Cobb trotted in from centre field. "The remarks weren't complimentary on either side" and, after a few, Cobb trotted back to his position. Earl looked at his catcher again, and there it was—the curve ball. Once more Earl shook it off, and once more Cobb jogged to the hill. This occurrence was repeated enough times that the umpires finally warned Cobb to get on with the game.

Thus Earl defied his manager, threw a fast ball and eventually won the game.

Baseball Is the Big Loser

As Earl said: "I had won my point, pitching the way I wanted to, and Cobb never gave me any trouble after that. Matter of fact he hardly spoke to me, unless he had to, and thereafter always relayed through a coach the fact that I would start a game."

This was typical of the fierce desire that made Earl a major league winner—he once tossed an umpire's whiskbroom into the stands after challenging the official on a decision, and also threatened to punch teammate Cecil Travis for making an error on a crucial play.

He was on a business trip when another car sideswiped his, sending him to hospital. He was released, with no apparent injuries, subsequently to suffer from severe headaches. He failed to respond to an emergency operation. The game he loved and served so well is the loser.

HOPMAN'S BABY

Aussie Net Selectors Trembling

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Australia's Davis Cup selectors, deeply worried by the defeat of Lewis Hoad, their young cup ace, plan to give immediate control of the Aussie squad to the shrewd non-playing captain, Harry Hopman.

Three of the four selectors were among the spectators Tuesday as old-timer John Bromwich gave Hoad—a 6-4, 6-3, 7-5 tennis lesson in the quarter-finals of the New South Wales tournament. All three agreed afterward that the only thing to do was to put the entire squad under the iron hand of Hopman.

The rest of the Australian Davis Cup team, which will defend the trophy against either the United States or Sweden here Dec. 26-28, is composed of Ken Rosewall, Mervyn Rose and Rex Hartwig.

Rose made it an all-Australian semi-final in the New South Wales tourney Tuesday by defeating the United States' Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., 6-4, 6-4, 7-5. Rosewall and Hartwig had gained the semi-finals earlier.

These four principles will be featured in the main event, an Australian tag team match.

COUGAR SUFFERS SILENTLY

'Mark' Ready To Make Mark Now

Clarence Emmett Marquess could well be the known factor the Cougars hope to use to help solve their future Western Hockey League equations.

At least he is the key to the formations that coach Billy Reay of the Cougars will throw at WHL opponents, starting particularly with Calgary Stampeders at Memorial Arena tonight.

It may have been noted in the club's last home appearance here Saturday that Marquess had replaced Alex Kuzma at right wing on the Cougars' most productive line as a mate for Eddie Dorohoy and Andy Hebertson.

Until then, except for a trial in Friday's losing encounter at Vancouver, Marquess had been used mostly left wing on the third unit, with Reay, Dave Wall and Gene Achtymiechuk alternating at the other posts.

There was a reason for this, and Marquess, during that time, asked for and received no special consideration, for the move was necessary because of a physical ailment.

Since the season's beginning Marquess has suffered from a broken bone in his right hand. And being a right hand shot, he couldn't get any power behind his drives. But he declined to sit out as many others

Cowboys Knock Royals From League Lead

Edmonton 6, Saskatoon 1
Calgary 8, New Westminster 1

The two Alberta entries in the Western Hockey League are beginning to look like the class of the six-team circuit.

Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Flyers both saw action Tuesday night. Both won in convincing fashion.

The defending champion Stampeders jumped into first place in the league standings by trampling New Westminster Royals 8-1. In winning, Stamps knocked Royals off the league's top run for the first time this season.

In Edmonton the Flyers had an equally easy time disposing of the cellar-dwelling Saskatoon Quakers. Flyers won 6-1 to move past the idle Vancouver Canucks into third place only a single point behind Royals and two behind Stamps.

Stampeders, now on a four-game swing through the British Columbia section of the league, move to Victoria tonight for a game against the fifth-place Cougars.

WITUK GETS TWO

At New Westminster Tuesday night, Stamps jumped into a 2-0 lead in the first period on two soft goals by Steve Wituk and Jerry Couture, then made it 4-1 going into the third. Wituk and Jim McFadden scored two apiece for the winners with Couture, Pat Lundy, Art Michalak and Archie Scott getting the others. New Westminster's lone goal was scored by veteran Gord Fashoway.

At Edmonton rookie centre Jerry Melnyk tallied twice for Flyers with Len Haley, Bronco Horvath, Al Armour, and Ray Hannigan adding one apiece. Eddie Kullman robbed goalie Glen Hall on his shutout bid by banging in a rebound with less than six minutes remaining in the game.

Flyers led 1-0 at the end of the first, boosted their margin to 4-0 in the second and had rolled up a 6-0 margin when Kullman scored.

WINNIPEG, Man. (BUP)—Wisecrackers among this city's sporting fraternity were talking whimsically of a return bout between sportscaster Jack Wells and footballer Jack Jacobs today but there was little chance that it would come off.

Wells, one of the nation's best-known football commentators, was missing a tooth and sporting a swollen lip as a result of the first fight. Jacobs, meanwhile, the fiery star of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers' football team, was nursing a scalp wound inflicted by a would-be peacemaker who witnessed the scuffle.

Neither appeared anxious to go at the other again.

The fight between Wells and Jacobs, a brief affair, took place Saturday night in Edmonton following the final game of the best-of-three playoff for the 1954 Western Football Conference championship. The Bom-

FAR-REACHING FISTIC DECISION

Return Bout Clause Banned

LONDON (AP)—The infant world boxing championship committee Tuesday banned the controversial "return bout" clause in title fights and said the group will not recognize a bout if the "return" is included in a contract.

The committee of four men representing New York, the National Boxing Association of the United States, Britain and Europe, also announced that no champion could defend his world title without the committee's approval; that no fight could be billed as a world title bout without the committee's approval; and that if a promoter did so, the fight would not be recognized in the U.S., Europe, Britain or the British Commonwealth.

The decision promptly drew the trans-Atlantic fire of Charley Johnston, manager of two world champions, featherweight Sandy Saddler of New York and light heavyweight Archie Moore of Miami.

Johnston said in New York that neither Saddler nor Moore would defend his title without benefit of the return bout clause.

The committee ranked Cuba's Nino Valdes as the No. 1 contender for Rocky Marciano's heavyweight crown, with Britain's Don Cockell second and Pittsburgh's Bob Baker, third.

Other No. 1 contenders included heavyweight, Boardwalk Billy Smith, Atlantic City, N.J.; middleweight, Joey Giardello, Philadelphia; welterweight, Carmen Basilio, Canastota, N.Y.; lightweight, Jimmy Carter, New York; featherweight, Percy Bassett, Philadelphia; bantamweight, Raton Macias of Mexico, and flyweight, Pascual Perez, Argentina.

Wanderer fullback Bill Short-house drove a free kick directly at Pirayev, who deflected the drive. Inside left Dennis Wilshaw trapped the rebound and drove it into the Russian net.

The teams continued their tight combat until Johnny Hancock scored at the 83-minute mark. The Russians then wilted under a powerful attack and gave up two more goals; to Roy Swinbourne and Hancock.

BROOKLYN PLANNING TO KEEP ITS BUMS

BROOKLYN (AP) — The Brooklyn Junior Chamber of Commerce, apparently alarmed at the shift of two American League and one National League franchise in the last two years, announced Tuesday the organization of a drive to "keep the Dodgers in Brooklyn."

Dodgers officials said they knew of no serious threat to the franchise, although the management has not been pleased with the falling off of attendance at Ebbets Field.

When Brooklyn won the 1953 pennant they drew 1,163,419 customers, but the gate dropped this year to 1,063,000 although the Dodgers were a pennant contender until the season's final week.

MAJOR LEAGUE TALENT WON'T STRETCH

Greenberg Off Base In Expansion Plan

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — The talk of expanding the American League into a 10-club organization is so unrealistic at this particular time that one wonders how Hank Greenberg, general manager of Cleveland Indians, could possibly be serious about the move he proposes to sponsor at the next meeting of his clubowners.

What is Hank going to suggest they use for ball players on the two additional teams he presumably means to foist on the good citizens of Los Angeles and San Francisco? If the former home run king was too busy winning a pennant the last season to realize that his league had an awful time suiting up even eight sets of big league players, he deserved to be tipped off.

It is doubtful that, among them, Philadelphia Athletics, Baltimore Orioles and Washington Senators could have put together a squad of better than fourth-place calibre. That means, Hank, that the talent was getting mighty thin down around the bottom. It means that your league has become dangerously overbalanced with out adding two more weak units to its woody understructure.

NOT SO GULLIBLE

We do not expect to see either league sell its future prospects on the west coast by rushing into anything as obviously suicidal as a 10-team circuit. We doubt seriously that either Los Angeles or San Francisco is prepared to spend its bond money to build a baseball park to house a collection of big league has-beens and callow rookies, the only material which would be available to them.

We have seen big league officials practically drool as they spoke of the huge crowds drawn by pro football out there. This is, in fact, one of the reasons that each league is so desperately anxious to beat the other to the supposed bonanza. What they are overlooking is the fact that both San Francisco and Los Angeles were blessed from the start with high-ranking football clubs which deserved support. The Coast fans will back a winner, but they are not hayshakers.

V's Victorious, But What a Battle!

Penticton V's and Vernon Canadians turned Penticton's hockey arena into a boxing ring during an Okanagan Senior Hockey League game Tuesday night.

When the fists had stopped flying and order restored, the V's had added two points to their league lead with a 5-4 victory.

But for the fans and the clubs, hockey was only incidental to the wild third-period touched off when Penticton's Bill Warwick and Vernon's Willie Schmidt tangled at midice in a fight that ended with players from both benches swarming into the fray and four players getting match misconduct penalties.

Given the heave-ho were Warwick and Schmidt along with George Agar and Lavallee.

As for the hockey part of the fray, Don Berry scored twice for Penticton, with Bill Warwick, Jim Fairburn and Mike Shabaga getting the others. Vernon marksmen were Lowe, Davidson, Agar and Roche.

Edmonton Set For Cup Final

EDMONTON (CP) — If Edmonton Eskimos defeat Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the Grey Cup semi-final here Saturday night, the on-to-Toronto plans of the Western Interprovincial Football Union's champions will be released.

"The plans are pretty well teed up," said Al Anderson, executive manager, after a meeting Tuesday of the club executive.

"But everything is being held in abeyance," added Anderson about the discussion of proposed participation in the Grey Cup parade and the transportation of the Eskimo team to Toronto to meet the Big Four champions, either Montreal Alouettes or Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Meanwhile, there was activity on other fronts for Grey Cup game festivities in event Edmonton gets past the Dutchmen, Ontario Rugby Football Union champions and Eskimos' farm team.

GOVERNMENT HELPS

A special civic committee, headed by Walter Sprague, past president of the Edmonton club, will meet Thursday. The committee announced the Alberta government will grant $2,000 to help pay the cost of activities of such antics as distributing 25,000 ice cream bars, inscribed "love those Eskies," along Toronto streets during the Grey Cup parade.

In 1952, the last time Eskimos participated in the Grey Cup final, the city entered 14 floats in the pre-game parade. In 1952 the special committee spent $7,500.

Mayor William Hawrelak will attend an executive meeting of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Ottawa November 24-26 and will be in Toronto for the Grey Cup game November 27.

On the player front it was uncertain whether several Eskimo first stringers would be dressing for Saturday's game.

INJURIES

Coach Frank Pop Ivy of the WIFU champions said doubtful starters are defensive back Ray Wilsey, offensive back Jackie Parker, two-way back Rolfe Miles and defensive end Frank Anderson.

Wilsey, picked for the conference all-star defensive team a year ago, broke his left arm October 4. The cast was taken off once since then but replaced when it was seen the arm had not healed sufficiently.

Parker, who scored the winning touchdown against Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the WIFU playoff final Saturday with a foot "frozen" to kill the pain, still is having trouble with a bone in his foot. Miles has a back injury.

Sudden Death Grid Playoff

Cadet teams from Royal Roads and HMCS Venture will meet Saturday in a sudden death final for the Victoria Junior Canadian football playoff championship and the Tommy Douglas trophy.

The final originally had been scheduled for two games but for the same reason as the one game final.

The game will be played at HMCS Naden field starting at 2.

LUMLEY HEADS GOALERS

Leafs Surprise Packet

MONTREAL (CP) — Little more than a cursory examination of the National Hockey League's new crop of statistics is needed to show that timeliness in scoring and a slick job of net-minding are the combination that has sparked the rampaging Toronto Maple Leafs.

Two weeks ago the Leafs were in fourth place, three points removed from the cellar. Today, having passed New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings, the Leafs are only three points from the top.

The Leafs' unbeaten string now stands at seven wins and a tie. They scored only 18 goals in those eight games, an average of little more than two a game. But big Harry Lumley gave up only seven goals, less than one a game.

Last week Leafs came up with four victories in as many starts. The handyman was Sid Smith, crew-cut left winger, who supplied the goals in two 1-0 shutouts over the Red Wings, two goals in a 3-1 win over Boston Bruins and an assist on one of the two goals that overcame New York Rangers.

An almost overlooked man in this show of Leafian alertness was veteran captain Ted Kennedy, who contributed five assists in the four-game sweep.

Smith's five points boosted him in the point-scoring race from an 18th place to a tie for eighth.

The leader, Bernie Boom Boom Geoffrion, of Montreal, was finally thrown off his goal-a-game pace but his two goals in three games ran his total to 15 in 16 games. He has five assists, and with 20 points is three ahead of Maurice "Rocket" Richard.

Harry Lumley's great stand put him well in the lead in the goaltenders' private race. With 24 goals against the Leafs in 15 games, Lumley's average is a classy 1.60.

Munn Mauls Maples For 190 Plus Mark

Who is currently the hottest tenpinner in town? Why, veteran Ken Munn, of course.

Going into action in Gibson's Senior Tenpin League three weeks ago, Munn was averaging a steady 183. Since then he has rolled three consecutive scores over 600 and is now hitting the maples above the 190 average mark.

Three weeks ago Ken racked up singletons of 247, 201 and 181 for a 629 triple, and then followed the next week with games of 246, 204 and 169 for a 619 total.

Tuesday night he chalked up singles of 256, 172 and 204, concluding action with a commendable 632.

Other top three Tuesday night were rolled by Dave Doolittle, 584; Henry Hawkins, 576; Jim Nicol, 567, and Wilf Johnston at 564.

Doolittle, 224; Wilbur Webb, 216; Johnston, 213; Nicol, 210, and Hawkins with 204 shot other leading singles.

Three teams — Gorge Hotel, Willshire Heat and Wilson's — are deadlocked for first place in the six-team circuit with 19 points. Willshire pounded out high team single of 1,028 and top triple of 2,747.

In major women's section, Vicky Elwood, 518, and Jessie Howard at 506 set the pace. Lou Colley came in with a 196 single.

Bill Coates led the Strathcona mixed section with 180-215-189—584.

Cy Wallis was the big man in fivepins at Capital City. Wallis topped the singles classic division with a lofty 897 triple, followed by Howie Butler, 856; Bill McKinnon, 802; Wes Vogler, 785; Eric Chayko, 765, and Bruce Atkinson at 717.

Marge Deslauriers, 866; Blondie Robinson, 783; Jerry Lawrence, 767; Phil Smith, 748; Harry Colls and Reg Waggoner, 738; Don Corbett, 729; Cee McRae, 727; Bruce Atkinson, Robinson paced mixed action with an 829 triple, while Stan Jones, 824; Olive Jolley, 747; Percy Riddle, 736, and Waggoner, 702 followed.

The T-Bowling Alley in Campbell River is holding a handicap tenpin singles tournament Dec. 5 with $150 guaranteed as first prize if all shifts are filled. Bowlers will roll four games across eight alleys and handicaps are based on 200. Shifts will be at 11 a.m. and 1, 3, 5, 7 and 9 p.m.

opened by the architects, Whittaker & Wagg, and are now being studied by Safeway representatives.

Lowest tender is believed to be in the neighborhood of $230,000.

An additional $250,000 will be spent on equipping the

Potato Blight Sends Prices Higher Here

Damage Heavy To B.C. Growers

A potato price increase is anticipated within the next two weeks due to a blight which has caused widespread damage to British Columbia's $3,500,000 crop this year, it was learned today.

Potato blight damaged about 10 per cent of the province's $8,000-ton crop, representing a loss of about $350,000 to Vancouver Island and mainland growers.

The disease also damaged the Alberta, Washington and Ontario spud crop.

WEATHER BLAMED

Growers blamed the spread of potato blight on this summer's damp and cool weather. The losses have already sent the wholesale price of potatoes from $35 to $45 a ton. The all-time low price for potatoes last year was $29 a ton.

Market officials said, however, the reduction in this year's crop will not result in a shortage of potatoes. British Columbia will be able to import from outside the province to make up for the loss.

But they added they expected the retail price of potatoes to be higher than last year due to crop losses in the United States and Alberta. Potato prices in the United States have already gone up, they pointed out.

TONS DESTROYED

Here on Vancouver Island several growers were hard hit by potato blight, according to marketing officials. Tons of potatoes had to be destroyed. However, it was pointed out that some growers were able to produce bumper crops which were disease-free. This helped offset losses caused by the blight.

The blight is a fungus disease which causes the potatoes to rot quickly after they have been taken out of the ground. The spud softens and becomes smelly. The disease, however, is not harmful to humans and affected potatoes can be eaten before they begin to rot.

125-Man Plant Acts On Closure Threat

Jobs of 125 Sooke Lake Lumber Co. workmen, threatened by a fire marshal's "clean or close" order to the firm, appeared safe today.

Company president Newton D. Cameron told the Times steps are being taken to remove the fire hazards which sparked an order by View Royal assistant fire marshal A. E. Beasley.

He ruled that waste materials on the Hallowell Road millsite must be removed within 30 days. The specified period is almost up.

Mr. Beasley acted on instructions from the British Columbia fire marshal, W. A. Walker, Vancouver, to whom nearby residents had complained.

His reaffirmation that he would close the plant if the order were not completely obeyed, got enthusiastic support from 50 View Royal residents at a community association meeting.

MUCH CRITICISM

The company, situated on View Royal's only industrial site, has been the object of noise criticism because of noise, smoke and harbor blockage at Plummer Bay, in addition to the threat of fire from burning waste material.

Mr. Cameron declared today that he has a researcher working on the noise problem, and is now awaiting results of tests made at his plant. He said the fire hazard had been reduced by burning waste in the mill's boilers. A belt conveyor now is on order to take material from the clipping section of the mill to a chipper machine soon to go into operation.

"Residents must realize," a company spokesman said, "that a certain amount of smoke and noise is inevitable for operation of the mill, and that jobs are provided through its operation."

View Royal residents protested about five years ago when the mill was established.

"We were told then the mill would be small, electrically operated and practically noiseless," a waterfront resident said.

"Of course, since then, it has grown into a horror."

TV Dealer Fined for Opening Wednesday

ABC Firm Fights Charge; May Appeal After $10 Fine Imposed by Court

A Victoria television dealer was fined $10 in police court today following conviction for keeping his store open on a Wednesday afternoon.

Jack Ryan, manager of ABC Television Sales and Service Ltd., 1011 Blanshard, indicated he may appeal the case.

Defense counsel, Ken C. Murphy, held that regulations only affect the serving of customers and that although the front door of the firm was open, Oct. 13, it was only for convenience of the service department.

But a defense witness, TV technician, Reg Conrod, admitted the shop was open for serving of customers.

It was also contended that Ryan should not be held responsible because the firm is controlled by a Vancouver company and Ryan is not in sole charge.

Police constable Lyle D. Somers told the court that on the Wednesday in question he saw the shop lights on.

"I saw three people go in, look at a TV set and come out." The time was given at 1:50 p.m.

Somers said that at 2:25 p.m. there were two salesmen and a technician on the floor.

Salesman James Ryan said he had merely returned to the shop to get his briefcase but he admitted under questioning that he told police, "We are open from nine to nine."

The charge was authorized by a referendum passed in Victoria in 1918.

New Wage Rules Urged on Builders

Consolidation of several wage orders affecting the construction industry has been proposed to Victoria's Building Trades Council by the Board of Industrial Relations.

Minimum wages, by the plan, would in a number of classifications be redefined.

The plan also includes a broadened definition of the construction industry. A new definition of tradesman would include some journeymen not presently covered by a specific minimum wage order, although a few exceptions would remain.

The board said a minimum wage would be set after representations from interested parties have been heard, but separate wage orders would remain for some trades such as sheet metal workers and machinists.

Booklet's purpose was to help educate soon-to-be graduates about to enter the business world on how business functions under the free enterprise system, and their own relationship to this.

It was prepared after a quiz of school students revealed serious misconceptions about the profits of Canadian firms.

"We are very sorry the school board made this decision," the Victoria chamber spokesman added, "and are hopeful they will change their minds."

Two Fined, One Freed After Assault Trials

Pub Waiter's Attacker Assessed $100; Un-Neutral Fight Referee Penalized

Two men were fined $100 each and a third had his charge dismissed at completion of three assault cases in police court today.

John Watt, 487 Foster, who pleaded guilty to injuring beer parlor waiter Bill Haley, was saved from heavier penalty by his previous good character. Magistrate H. C. Hall set the fine in Esquimalt court.

The magistrate said the fact that the 51-year-old man had never been in trouble before weighed in his favor. Watt had inflicted lip and scalp cuts on the waiter, who was trying to hurry him from a beer parlor last month.

In city court, Donald Russell Reynolds, HMCS Ontario, was given choice of $100 fine or two months' jail for assaulting shipmate Lorne Pashe, Nov. 8. Magistrate Hall pointed out that he was taking note of the fact that Reynolds was not an original participant in the brawl in which Pashe was injured, but was in the role of peacemaker.

"However, in so doing, you used considerable force."

EYE IMPAIRED
Pashe may have permanent eye injury. For a while after being admitted to RCN hospital he was in a dangerous condition.

Walter Gray, HMCS Athabaskan, was exonerated from an alleged assault when he was described as a well-intentioned middleman. He had pleaded guilty to assault of Harold Wasney, 1178 Fort. He had earlier refused to speak in his own defense.

A Times news story Monday recounted evidence by Wasney to the effect that the assault had been unprovoked.

WOMEN TESTIFY
Two city women who had witnessed the fight read the story and Gray's divisional officer arranged for them to testify.

Magistrate Hall remanded Gray until today to hear the new evidence.

Marilyn G. Smith and Marilyn P. Cliffe said they had been waiting for a bus near Johnson on Douglas November 12. They saw two civilians and a sailor approaching. The civilians began to fight and Gray attempted to separate them. Neither saw Gray land a blow.

In view of the evidence, Gray was asked if he wanted to change his plea. He pleaded not guilty and said the reason he had not spoken before was because he had been drinking the night of the fight and could not remember.

City prosecutor Alan Bigelow had no evidence to counter the testimony of the witnesses and the charge was dismissed.

'Suicide Corner' Readied for Big Blasting Job Next Spring

Construction crews next spring will blast a huge rock bluff at "Suicide Corner," Goldstream, to reduce the danger of accidents, as part of the new Island Highway outlet.

Holes already have been drilled in the rock face, but the blasting will not take place until early in the spring. The Island Highway will be blocked for a short time by the explosion.

Officials of Emil Anderson Construction Co., which is working on the linking stretch of the new outlet, said their agreement with the public works department calls for removal of the blasted rock within four hours.

The blast will be announced and publicized extensively on previous dates, to avoid inconvenience to the traveling public and to trucking and logging firms.

Suicide Corner, a long, sustained curve on a steep grade, with a sharp drop to the Goldstream on one side and the rock face on the other, received its name from police officers after a number of fatal accidents.

The new highway outlet will cut deeply into the rock face and flatten out the curve.

Company officials said that because of the nature of the project, it is impossible to remove the rock without blocking the road. They plan to blast most of the rubble across the road and down a bank on the opposite side.

Rock fill work on Langford end of new Island Highway outlet goes ahead with announcement by contractors road will be completed before summer travel next year. (Times photo).

Long Wearing, Attractive

Men are more difficult to choose a gift for than women... that's a well-known fact. Probably the most difficult man to buy for is the elderly one, and that's where I come in with the suggestion that what could be more acceptable than a warm, hand-woven scarf? You see, the scarves I have in mind are woven by an expert. Whether you choose to buy a striped or plaid one, I know you'll admire the fine, close weave and the tasteful colors.

AS WE LIVE

Mate Is Jealous
Of Wife's Family

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Some men want to feel that their wives have no interest in anyone but them. They are jealous of the wives' interest in their families, and they make life miserable for everyone. One young wife writes:

(Q)—"I have been married for seven years and have no children. I cannot say they have been happy years, as my husband and I argue a lot, mostly about my family. He doesn't want me to go to see them and when they come to see me, he is so miserable that they hate to come. This makes me miserable too, as I love my folks. They live in the city and I can't go to see them often, as it is expensive to go by train. My husband has no close relatives. I can't help feeling that he is wrong about not wanting me to see my folks. When we're home alone, he is fine. How can I convince him that he is being unfair to me?"

(A)—I doubt very much that you can convince your husband he is being unfair to you, in his attempts to cut you off from your family. He feels jealous of your love for them. He interprets it to mean that he does not give you enough love to satisfy you. This is a blow to his ego which makes him angry.

On the other hand, you should see your family and your family should be welcome in your home. It would be more pleasant for all concerned, however, if you were with them when your husband was not around.

As you have no children, surely you have enough free time to take a part-time job. By doing this, you can earn enough money to buy some of the things you want for your home—and you would still have money for the train fare to visit your family occasionally.

If you could get a job near where your family lives, that would give you an opportunity to drop in often to see them. They must understand by now how things are and would probably be willing to have you go to see them, even if they do not come to see you often. When they do come, couldn't you arrange to have them with you when your husband is away at work?

As a special service to our readers, Dr. Hurlock has written a 64-page booklet, "You and Your Problems." For your copy send 15 cents in coin with a self-addressed stamped envelope to this newspaper.

One 2½-to-3-pound frying chicken, cut in serving pieces, all-purpose flour, salt and pepper, 1½ cups tomato juice, salt to taste, dash freshly ground pepper, dash cayenne, 1 small bay leaf, ½ cup dill pickle liquid, ¼ tablespoon sugar, ½ clove garlic, minced, ½ cup chopped dill pickles, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard.

Dredge chicken in flour and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Brown in hot fat. Place in a 3-quart casserole. Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients. Quiet Ceremony in Ganges Church This Afternoon

Lois Ann, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Foubister, Rainbow Road, Ganges, was united in marriage this afternoon with Harvey Lloyd, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Reynolds, Beaver Point. The quiet ceremony took place in the United Church, Ganges, with Rev. J. G. G. Bompas officiating. Chrysanthemums in the varied autumn shades decorated the church and Mrs. L. Mout sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length gown of turquoise blue taffeta with bracelet-length sleeves, fitted bodice buttoned to a high neckline and a full skirt of unpressed pleats beaming out from a low waistline. A tiny hat of turquoise sequins and a bouquet of pink roses completed the bride's costume.

The groom was attended by Clinton Hall. A small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mr. Stanley Wagg proposed the toast to the bride. The bride's table was arranged with pale pink chiffon, matching tapers in silver candleabra and centred with a three-tier wedding cake.

Skilled Worker in Wheelchair

CHETICHAMP, N.S. (CP)—Marie Antoinette Deveaux is a skilful dress designer, first class milliner and also makes mats whose lady tracings have attracted buyers in the United States.

Marie has spent 40 of her 46 years in a wheelchair.

She was a tot of six and a school-child for only three days when polio-struck and fashioned for her a life in a wheelchair.

Miss Deveaux could never dance or run with other children but she called on a native talent to become one of the most accomplished artisans of Cape Breton island where the hardy people are proud of their skills.

She can finish, remodel or alter a suit with the perfection and polish of a professional tailor. But her principal output has been hooked mats. They adorn private homes and public buildings in many cities of the United States and Canada.

Her work is done with a simple hook made from a nail sharpened to a point. She copies designs from postcards, water color sketches, magazines and color prints but can also produce an original design.

Marie speaks French in a soft, musical voice, like many of her fellow Cape Bretoners on this northwest coast of the island.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Food You Eat Becomes
Your Body—Eat Carefully

Just think, the beef you prepared and ate a few days ago, has already fortified your blood and bones.

When we stop to think that our bodies are being constantly renewed and that food is the weapon with which nature renews us, the food we eat takes on greater importance in our thoughts.

Just think, the beef you ate a few days ago has already been made a part of your red blood corpuscles and the calcium a part of your bones. The vegetables and fruits and juices rushed about taking their places in the care of your health and body. How wonderful and intricate are the workings of the bodies we so often abuse with poor care!

As the old cells of your skin slough off you discover a new complexion. Every single day our tissues and our blood streams are changing. Why not make every effort to change them for the better? I believe that it would actually be possible to be more youthful a few months hence if we would try to renew ourselves inside and out.

White Organdie Newest Thing In Hats to Wear at Parties

NEW YORK (UP) — Who'd ever think a well-dressed woman would appear on a wintry day wearing a white organdie hat with her warmest coat?

White organdie sounds more like garden party frocks than winter hats. And pale blue satin reminds more people of wedding gowns than tailored sailor hats to wear with tweeds.

But like the etiquette expert who picks up her fried chicken in her fingers and makes it so socially correct, certain people can appear on the snowy scene wearing white organdie hats and make them fashionable.

They're going to, too, along about holiday season this winter. White and pastel hats are the holiday choice of Irene, a veteran hat designer who is Mrs. Irene Stone and a grandmother in private life.

"Look, it's a tailored white organdie hat!" Irene exclaimed, holding aloft a small hat with a rounded crown and an inch-

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by
Mrs. Dan Gerber
(Mother of 5)

When I was a little girl my mother used to tell me that carrots would make my hair curl. 'Tain't so, say the experts. But carrots do contribute to the general well-being of wee ones. Carrots are high in the vitamin-A value that helps keep tender young skin clear... bronchial and intestinal systems healthy.

Speaking of vitamin A, here's a new, good-tasting source for baby: Gerber's Garden Vegetables — a happy combination of carrots, peas and spinach. Gerber's blend these important "green and yellow" group vegetables for their exceptionally high vitamin-A value, and to provide a mild, pleasant new flavor. Gerber's Garden Vegetables also provide liberal amounts of iron. Good — and good for baby.

Shape of things. Baby's woolen booties will stay nice-looking longer if you stuff them with paper after washing. Keeps them in shape, helps prevent wool from matting.

It's well worth knowing why so many doctors suggest Gerber's Cereals when it's time to start baby on solid foods. Gerber's Cereals supply baby with the nourishment he needs because they're enriched with iron, minerals and essential B-Vitamins. Good tasting, too — Gerber's Cereals have the smooth texture and mild, pleasing flavors that appeal to the very young. Try all five: Mixed, Rice, Barley, Oatmeal and Wheat.

Sitting pretty. You can make a soft, comfortable mattress for baby's play pen by folding and tuffing an old blanket. Very cozy seating arrangement.

A lovely spoon for your baby! Heavy silver, plated Baby Spoon in famous Winthrop design (regular value $1.25) is yours for only 25c plus one box top from any of the five Gerber Baby Cereals mentioned above. Send to: Mrs. Dan Gerber, Box 68, Toronto 18, Canada.

Youth Prefers Death To School Studies

MONTICELLO, Ky. (AP)—A 17-year-old who preferred death to school, killed himself Tuesday, using a stick to push the shotgun trigger. The blast struck 15-year-old Paul Morris in the heart. Mrs. Albert Morris told police her son "said he would rather die than go to school."

Mayor Hume Rejects Police Probe Demands

Says Vancouver Police Commission Capable of Administering Force

VANCOUVER (CP)—Demands for a full-scale, independent investigation into alleged dissension in the Vancouver police force were rejected Tuesday by Mayor Fred Hume.

The mayor said the three-man police commission, of which he is chairman, takes sole responsibility for administering police affairs.

"I think the commission will still handle police matters in a way they think proper," he said.

The mayor's statement followed an attack Monday by two aldermen against Chief Constable Walter Muir, whose 723-man force has been beset with a mounting crime wave.

3 Opposition Leaders Hit Forest Policy

VANCOUVER (CP)—Leaders of British Columbia's three opposition political parties joined forces Tuesday in criticism of the Social Credit government's forest management policies.

They indicated the controversy will be a top issue at next year's legislative session.

Said CCF leader Arnold Webster: "The weakness is not in the principle of forest management, but in the handling of our forest resources in perpetuity to private interests with no power for periodic review of agreements."

British Columbia is one of the last frontiers, he said, "and it is not surprising that powerful American capitalists should be looking with covetous eyes in this direction."

Deane Finlayson, Progressive Conservative leader, supported Tuesday's statement by Liberal leader Arthur Laing.

"I believe the time has come when the government should take another look at its present forest policy to determine what effect these management licenses are going to have on industry and the province."

The dispute was precipitated by the acquisition of Alaska Pine Ltd. by the Rayonier Corp. of New York after Alaska Pine had acquired a forest management license.

INJURED IN SOAP BOX DERBY GIVEN $14,000

TRAIL, B.C. (AP)—Damages totalling approximately $14,000 have been awarded two Trail residents in a judgment against the Trail GYRO Club.

Announcement of the judgment handed down by Mr. Justice J. V. Cline was made Tuesday at Rossland.

The suit arose from an accident 3½ years ago at the annual soap box derby sponsored each year by the GYRO Club here.

Mrs. Bruce King and Mrs. Peter Shubaty were both injured when one of the soap-box cars ran out of control and hit them.

The damages do not include court costs and miscellaneous hospital costs which were attached to the judgment.

'Richest Young Man' Appeals Jail Term

TORONTO (BUP)—John Leonard Smallman, one of Canada's richest young men, pleaded today to appeal a conviction for a $11 robbery.

The handsome 20-year-old heir to a $3,000,000 oil fortune was sentenced to 18 months in reformatory Tuesday for beating and robbing salesman Lawrence Nash last Dec. 17.

Judge Robert Forsyth said he was "much more impressed" by the salesman, who said Smallman and two other men broke his nose in six places.

Then he was by the young millionaire, who was fined $100 in Detroit only a week ago for carrying an unregistered gun.

Nash said he had been drinking with three strangers who drove him to Smallman's apartment to see some plastic jewelry Smallman was selling at the time. He said he was attacked and robbed of $41 as he

Toronto Woman Disappears On Way to Have Her Baby

TORONTO (CP)—Wallace Julien thinks he has become a father. But he can't find his wife and can't find a baby.

Julien went to police Tuesday in a dither and said his wife, Jean, had been expecting a child and was a month beyond the expected date.

He left her at home Monday morning when he went to work. Everything seemed all right then but when he returned at night he found this note: "Dear Wally: I am leaving you $10. The doctors say I must go to the hospital at once before it is too late."

The note didn't say who the doctors were or what hospital she was going to.

SAFETY BELTS AND COLLAPSIBLE BULLET NOSE

Surgeons Describe Future Auto, Will Cut Deaths, Injuries 80%

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Changes in your future new car—from safety belts to a collapsible bullet nose—were urged by several surgeons Tuesday.

One estimated these "extras" would cost you about $30 more, but reduce auto deaths and injuries by 80 per cent.

"The motorist must have a strap on his vehicle and wear it like a suit of armor," agreed Dr. Horace E. Campbell, Denver, and R. Arnold Griswold, Louisville, Ky., at an America College of Surgeons symposium on prevention of auto injuries.

"In most automobiles, we are as vulnerable to injury as a teacup shipped loose in a barrel," added Col. Don S. Wenger of the office of the surgeon general, U.S. Air Force, Washington.

"The changes, designed to prevent people from being flung out of cars or against the inside, are:

Seats fixed so firmly to the car frame that they can withstand sudden stops equal to 40 times the pull of gravity.

Retractable seat belts fixed to that kind of seat. Until then, seat belts fixed to the car frame itself.

to avoid their becoming "a spear aimed at the heart."

Doors, like airplane doors, that won't fly open.

A crash panel of four-inch-thick foam material on the dashboard.

Getting rid of all sharp projections of instruments or rear view mirrors.

A front nose 2½ feet thick made of something like aluminum foam which would crumple slowly, absorbing the shock of a crash. Dr. Campbell says the chromium "gingerbread" of grille work now does a bit of this shock-absorbing.

He envisions a collapsible nose which could be replaced after an accident as easily as a tire now is changed.

Dr. Campbell estimated the annual toll in the United States of some 30,000 deaths and 1,250,000 injuries in auto crashes—not including pedestrians—could be cut by 80 per cent. Other experts estimated the saving from 20 to 50 per cent.

This tale appeared in the CBC Times, but as someone once said: "It just don't seem right."

Seems Dorothy Jane Goulding, who, with Ruth Johnson, writes "Kindergarten of the Air," received a letter from an 80-year-old Saskatchewan farmer.

While listening to "Singing Stars of Tomorrow," he wrote, he looked out the window and noticed that passing deer had stopped outside his house to listen.

After a few moments they began to eat grass in rhythm to the music. They kept up until the program ended and then they turned and left, apparently satisfied with their dinner and their dinner music.

Wonder how many bucks the farmer got out of that meal?
Of meals out of that buck. . . I don't know, which.

IN THE WHITTE TIMES

While the CBC is in mind, tonight's performance on CBC Wednesday Night is a "must"
for opera lovers.

The CBC Opera Company will present
"Eugene Onegin" by Tchaikovsky. It will be sung in English and will star a Canadian cast headed by Norman Farrow, Elizabeth Benson
Guy, and Jon Vickers.

Conductor will be Nicholas Goldschmidt.

A note from CJVI.

"Press Conference," a CBC Dominion production carried by the Victoria station at 9 tonight, will feature French premier Pierre Mendes France.

Been listening lately to an interesting contest on CKDA.

They're asking people who buy certain products to send in entries from their dealers and at the same time name a Latin-American tune that is being played over the air.

Prize for the winner is a pair of tickets for a holiday in Mexico.

Well, after hearing this tune for some time now, I don't to hazard a guess.

I haven't entered the contest, but I'm willing to bet the tune is called "Cleito Lindo."

Anyone want to share their prize?

'STUPID' SOLDIER?

Harry Invited Monty To Burn White House

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, here Tuesday for a civic reception in his honor, smilingly

VISCOUNT MONTGOMERY
... apologizes to Buffalo

apologized for his remark last year, "where's Buffalo?" calling it the "slur of a stupid, ignorant soldier."

"I did insult your city and I have come to make a public apology," the wartime commander of the British Eighth Army said at a luncheon sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Buffalo Advertising Club. "And now that I have seen your city and your magnificent city hall, there is no doubt about it that the city is indeed the cat's whiskers."

Montgomery's now-famous remark about Buffalo was made last year in Canada during a discussion with reporters about possible A-bomb targets in North America.

GOOD EXAMPLE

In his talk today before an estimated 1,100 persons, Montgomery said Britain and the United States offer a good example of nations that used to fight each other but became the best of friends.

"Why, the regiment I joined as a cadet," he said, "beat you fellows across the border at Fort Erie. And then the chaps went further down south and I understand they even burned your White House."

"In 1948, as a matter of fact, when I was in Washington visiting Ike, I stopped over at the White House and offered apologies to President Truman for our chaps burning it down."

"The White House, it seems, was in a bit of disrepair at the time and President Truman said 'You can come and burn the damn thing down again any time you want.'"

New Charge May Be Laid Against Joe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Wallace Bennett (Rep. Utah) announced Tuesday night he would file a new censure count against Senator Joseph McCarthy based on McCarthy's "Communist handmaiden" attack on the Watkins committee and its chairman. Bennett made the announcement on the Senate floor after his fellow Utah Republican, Senator Arthur Watkins, called for such an additional indictment on the ground McCarthy has been guilty of indecent contempt "right under our noses."

SCOFFS AT MOVE

McCarthy scoffed at the move to file a third censure charge against him. He said it added an "Alice-in-Wonderland" note to a procedure that is getting "curiouser and curiouser."

Hard Problem Faced in Control Of Foreign-Born Tree Diseases

Foreign agents are active in girdling of the tree, which eventually strangles the growth. This girdling is a symptom of tree death, Dr. Foster said.

He mentioned an outbreak of the gypsy moth disease in an American region where $100,000,000 was spent in wiping out the blight.

With one-tenth of that sum at three per cent interest, the biologist said, his department could expand and obtain needed equipment, and still carry on in perpetuity.

Canada's quarantine system is helping a great deal in the control of foreign-borne diseases, the expert said. The federal quarantine was one of the first such systems in the world.

Problems encountered in fighting tree diseases include the fact that most are too well established to control, it is virtually impossible to reach every tree affected, the battle is often economically impossible, there is no central control, no public support and diseases develop in ideal conditions.

MAP SHOWS locations of the three major dam sites on Columbia river system within B.C. which are mentioned in the article below.

COLUMBIA WATER DEAL

Good Economics —Or Give-Away?

In view of widespread public interest in the proposed deal between the B.C. government and Kaiser Aluminum interests to build a water storage dam at the lower end of Arrow Lakes, the Times today publishes the first of three articles on the subject by Tom Gould, Times legislative reporter. The result of exhaustive research, the three articles will cover all ramifications and possibilities of the project and examine both B.C. government's argument for and the federal government's case against the plan.

By TOM GOULD, Times Legislative Reporter

The proposed construction of a water storage dam at Castlegar Narrows, at the foot of Arrow Lakes, by Kaiser Aluminum Co. is developing into one of the hottest political issues in decades.

In Victoria and Ottawa, legal authorities are thumbing through musty law books, politicians are penning speeches, U.S. businessmen, hydraulic engineers, construction officials, and the man-in-the-street are becoming embroiled in the controversy.

Simply, the water storage proposal is this: Kaiser plans construction of a $25,000,000 low-level dam on B.C. soil to hold 3,000,000 acre-feet of water at the Arrow Lakes high-water mark.

The dam would enable the water flow down the Columbia to be regulated; it would ensure a year-round supply of water to generating plants on the U.S. side of the international boundary. As a result, manufacturing plants in the north-west states would be guaranteed a year-round, uninterrupted supply of electricity.

In return for the water storage, the provincial treasury would receive 20 per cent of the power generated in existing downstream power houses, or, if B.C. industries could not use the power—cash. In addition, the Kaiser interests would pay an estimated $275,000 annually in fees and taxes. Value of 20 per cent of generated power has been established at $1,000,000.

Water Wasted at Peak Periods

Water pouring out of Arrow Lakes runs through the U.S. at the present time, but unless the flow can be regulated, huge amounts are wasted during high-water periods, and the U.S. generating plants cannot operate at peak capacity on a 12-month basis.

B.C.'s Social Credit government has given the project conditional approval, and is determined the deal will go through.

The Liberal government at Ottawa is just as determined to block it; Trade Minister C. D.

Howe and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair have announced Canada's horse-and-buggy water and power export laws will be amended at the spring session of the House of Commons to do just that.

Ottawa's objections centre on two factors. (1) B.C.'s price for the water is too low compared with similar U.S.-Canada deals. (2) Low-priced B.C. water would spin U.S. turbines that would stimulate industry expansion in the States at the

Situation Here
Not Critical

VANCOUVER (BUP) — George Hird, president of the construction and general workers' section of the Trades and Labor Council said today the government should lower the old age pension to 50 because after that age persons can't find jobs.

Compiled from CP-BUP
Dispatches

VANCOUVER — A plea for a "Colombo plan" to help Vancouver feed its thousands of unemployed will be placed before the federal government Nov. 25 and 26 by the city, it was learned today. And, simultaneously, the Vancouver Trades and Labor Council wired Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent asking him to take immediate action about the unemployment situation on the West Coast.

Ald. Jack Cornett will carry the city's request to Ottawa as provincial, labor, management and charitable agencies combine to tackle the problem.

The suggestion of a "Colombo plan" for jobs came from Ald. Anna Sprott, who said:

"I'm in favor of foreign aid, but the time has come when we must feed hungry people within our gates." She suggested Canada's food surplus, now going in part to feed hungry millions in Asia, should be diverted to some degree to Vancouver.

NEARLY 18,000 Horace Ketch, National Employment Service manager here, said there were nearly 18,000 persons on unemployment rolls in the city at the end of October. Available jobs listed during the month totaled 5,400.

Premier Bennett has asked the Union of British Columbia Municipalities for a list of public works projects which would help ease the situation throughout the province.

Meanwhile, TLC secretary R. K. Gervin said the council was aroused at "the federal government's apathy in the face of rising unemployment."

WeatherShip Steaming To Stricken Freighter

U.S. Ship Breaking Open 840 Miles Off Flattery

The Victoria-based weathership St. Catherine's left her assigned position on Station "Papa," far out in the Pacific, at 10 a.m. this morning to rush to the aid of a U.S. freighter.

The 7,000-ton Liberty-type S.S. P & T Trader cracked her hull in high seas and a North Pacific gale early today.

Her captain has radioed that emergency repairs were made, but the ship was barely making enough headway to keep into the wind.

However, St. Catherine's this morning was fighting her way through heavy seas to stand by the damaged ship.

Messages picked up here by Gordon Head wireless indicate the weathership likely will stand by pending the arrival of two U.S. coast guard cutters rushing to her aid.

Coast Guard Requested Aid

The coast guard requested aid from St. Catherine's, reported to be about 30 miles from P & T Trader, which is about 840 miles west by north of Cape Flattery. The cutter Klamath was dispatched from Seattle to meet the freighter.

Coast guard officials said there was "no immediate danger." However, at press time the ship was still bucking heavy seas and winds of 50 miles per hour. The barometer was still falling, indicating rougher weather to come.

The coast guard said the first distress call from P & T Trader reported a nine-foot-long crack extending from the hatch, coming in down three side plates. A later message said the crew had welded angle irons across the crack inside the hull.

The ship reported the crack was "working" (showing movement under the battering of the sea), but was not increasing in size.

Owned by Pope & Talbot Inc., San Francisco, she was en route to Yaquina Bay, Ore., from Japan, and is in ballast.

The local weather office received its last report from St. Catherine's at 10 a.m. Just before she left station. Winds were reported as having dropped to about 20 miles per hour, but a deep low pressure area extends over the eastern Pacific.

In January, 1952, Stonetown, sister weathership to St. Catherine's, took part in a vain hunt for survivors of the sunken freighter Pennsylvania, which was of similar construction to P & T Trader.

Pennsylvania sustained a cracked hull in heavy seas. At first she reported "no immediate danger," but with dramatic suddenness her wireless operator sent the message, "Leaving now."

An intensive search over raging seas located floating debris and wreckage. But no lifeboats or survivors were ever found. Forty-six were aboard Pennsylvania when she went down.

A total of 48 officers and crew are reported in P & T Trader.

AFTER THREE-HOUR TOUR

'Just Twiddling My Thumbs' Says Tongue-in-Cheek Duke

BIRMINGHAM (CP) — The Duke of Edinburgh today took note of a newspaper squabble over the duties of the Royal Family.

Speaking at a luncheon after a three-hour tour of a rubber factory here, he said: "It is always a pleasure to go round a happy works, which I have found this morning... of course, ladies and gentlemen, you know what I am doing—I am twiddling my thumbs."

The luncheon guests laughed and applauded what was an obvious rejoinder to an editorial Tuesday in the London Daily Mirror which said members of the royal family do a fine job of work when they go abroad, but asked:

Top Italian Red Faced With Own Sex Scandal

ROME (UP) — Italy's embarrassed Reds, who tried unsuccessfully to pin an immorality label on the anti-Communist government of Premier Mario Scelba, today were stuck with a sensational sex scandal of their own.

Giuseppe Sotgiu, Communist lawyer and party official, was accused of immoral acts as an outgrowth of a police raid on one of Rome's lush "houses of rendezvous" where wealthy Italians patronize prostitutes.

The development was particularly painful to the Reds since Sotgiu's voice was one of the loudest in condemnation of the Wilma Montesi sex and dope scandal through which the Communists attempted to wreck Scelba's government.

Sotgiu failed to answer a police summons to appear for questioning concerning his alleged acts against morality.

Darning Needle Death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mysterious death of Peter L. Pivaroff, 35, from a darning needle in the heart was a "homicide by a person or persons unknown," a coroner's jury held Tuesday.

Pivaroff died last Wednesday, 26 hours after being admitted to a hospital with an apparent heart ailment. X-rays shortly before he died showed a 2½-inch needle had entered between his fourth and fifth ribs, penetrating his heart.

Russia Plans Defense Alliance As Counterpart to West's NATO

MOSCOW (UP) — There were increasing signs today the Soviet Union was preparing to set up a defense alliance of East European nations to counteract NATO.

Diplomatic sources said the Soviet was expected to call a conference of East European nations here Nov. 29 if the western nations reject the Kremlin's invitation to an all-Europe security conference, as expected.

(Communist broadcasts from Prague, Warsaw, Budapest and Bucharest said the satellite nations of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, and Romania already had agreed to send delegates to the Soviet-proposed conference.)

Diplomatic sources speculated the East European conference would result in some sort of east European collective security pact formalizing the already intimate political and military relations between Russia and the east European nations.

Trud, official organ of the Trade Union Central Council, made it clear today that a "defense alliance" was in the works when it published an article by S. Vasiliev, secretary of the Moscow regional peace committee, saying:

"We will get together later to see what we can do about lower tax rates," he told the Canadian Tax Foundation.

While agreeing that rates are high and exemptions low, Mr. Harris added that tax rates must be high if the government is to find revenue to pay bills.

But, he continued, "there is so much to be gained if we can preserve initiative and enterprise."

"It would be most unfortunate if prospects in this land of opportunity were dimmed by unwise government demands on the fruits of success in business and professional life—indeed, in any gainful employment."

"Creation of a narrow military grouping of several western European states, the chief military force of which would be a West German army having

U.S.S.R. AGREES TO BACK WORLD SCIENCE PARLEY

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Russia agreed today to take part in arrangements for an international scientific conference planned as part of President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace program.

Vishinsky declared he had the feeling that both sides are making every effort to eliminate their differences. He cautioned against speed.

Canada's Paul Martin, commenting later on Vishinsky's speech, said it "clearly advances the Russian position and has considerably narrowed the gap between us."

Yes, Says Finance Chief, Taxes ARE High

MONTREAL (CP) — Finance Minister Harris said Tuesday night he has made an initial examination of Canada's tax rates and has found them "pretty high."

He described the personal income tax as "severe."

Mr. Harris, who took over the finance portfolio last July, said he is also concerned over the corporation tax rate under which the federal government "takes away half or more of the rewards of hard work which leads to promotion."

"We will get together later to see what we can do about lower tax rates," he told the Canadian Tax Foundation.

While agreeing that rates are high and exemptions low, Mr. Harris added that tax rates must be high if the government is to find revenue to pay bills.

But, he continued, "there is so much to be gained if we can preserve initiative and enterprise."

"It would be most unfortunate if prospects in this land of opportunity were dimmed by unwise government demands on the fruits of success in business and professional life—indeed, in any gainful employment."

Queen Mother Concludes Triumphant Canadian Visit

By JAMES R. NELSON

She had no engagements scheduled for today other than a small reception at Government House for members of the press and their wives. She will have a quiet luncheon at the governor-general's residence before leaving for the airport.

The Queen Mother, gowned in white lace over crinoline with a printed maple leaf design, attended the Canadian Repertory Theatre Tuesday night for a performance of "White Oaks," a play based on a novel by Canadian authoress Mazo de la Roche. Her Majesty wore a diamond tiara with matching diamond jewelry.

Seeing the play, and chatting with the performers backstage afterwards, climaxed a day during which she saluted the "Spirit of Adventure" which she said had made Canada great and Ottawa noble. She wound up a whirlwind round of civic functions with a quiet afternoon drive in the nearby Gatineau Hills of Quebec and an early-evening brief meeting with French Premier Pierre Mendes-France and Mme. Mendes-France, who also leave here today.

Edges Hamilton
14-9 in Playoff

CIVIC STADIUM, HAM-ILTON, Ont. (BUP)—
Montreal Alouettes stormed back for a touchdown in the dying minutes to beat the Hamilton Tiger-Cats
14-9 in the first game of the Big Four two-game total-point series here today.

Trailing 9-7 with less than four minutes to go, Sam Etche-verry passed to Charlie Hun-singer for a 59-yard touchdown play. Montreal added the convert and a meaningless rouge as the gun sounded.

The win gave the Alouettes a five-point lead in the series designed to determine the Big Four Grey Cup representative.

More than 16,000 fans saw the game, played in a bone-dry field.

Neither team was able to score a major in the first half, but Hamilton picked up a first quarter single at the six minute mark. Merle Hapes booted a quick-kick that traveled 70 yards into the end zone and halfback Charlie Hunsinger conceded the rouge.

Montreal went ahead 3-1 midway in the second quarter on Ray Poole's 35-yard field goal.
Joey Pal and Bill Bewley combined to return Cam Fraser's kick to the Montreal 44. Two Etcheverry passes and a ground play moved the ball to the Hamilton 35 where Poole kicked a wide-angle field goal.

Hamilton added its second single on Fraser's kick to the deadline just before the half ended. The Tiger-Cats added their third point three minutes into the third quarter when Fraser's punt from the Montreal 35 was conceded in the end zone.

SECOND FIELD GOAL
The Alouettes increased their lead to 7-3 on Poole's second field goal at the seven minute mark.

Each club scored touchdowns late in the final quarter. Hamilton went ahead 9-7 on a Sogin to Ron Howell pass that covered 26 yards. Logan converted.

Montreal matched it six minutes later on a 59-yard scoring pass. Etcheverry to Charlie Hunsinger. Poole's conversion made it 13-9 for Montreal. The Alouettes added another point
when Doug McNichol rouged
Dick Brown in the final minute.

Life's Just a Bowl of Bananas

Samuel Q. Simian, prominent member of jungle society, and a leading light in Who's Zoo, entertained friends at Doncaster School this morning. Samuel is associated with the Dr. Ballard travelling circus, now showing at various schools in the Victoria area. However, with all due respects to Dr.

Ballard, Samuel says dog food is strictly for the dogs. "I'm the banana type, personally," he tells Barbara Evans (left), and Eric Kjekstad. The boss man of the circus, Lorne McMillan, agrees, although he sometimes suspects Samuel of playing a skin game at feeding time.

Vancouver Acts

Jobless Crisis

VANCOUVER (BUP)—George Hird, president of the construction and general workers' section of the Trades and Labor Council said today the government should lower the old age pension to 50¢ because after that age persons can't find jobs.

Compiled from CP-BUP
Vancouver—A plea for a "Colombo plan" to help Vancouver feed its thousands of unemployed will be placed before the federal government Nov. 25 and 26 by the city, it was learned today. And, simultaneously, the Vancouver Trades and Labor Council wired Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent asking him to take immediate action about the unemployment situation on the West Coast.

Ald. Jack Cornett will carry the city's request to Ottawa as provincial, labor, management and charitable agencies combine to tackle the problem.

The suggestion of a "Colombo plan" for jobless came from Ald. Anna Sprott, who said:

"I'm in favor of foreign aid, but the time has come when we must feed hungry people within our gates." She suggested Canada's food surpluses, now going in part to feed hungry millions in Asia, should

COLUMBIA WATER DEAL

Good Economics
—Or Give-Away?

In view of widespread public interest in the proposed deal between the B.C. government and Kaiser Aluminum interests to build a water storage dam at the lower end of Arrow Lakes, the Times today publishes the first of three articles on the subject by Tom Gould, Times legislative reporter. The result of exhaustive research, the three articles will cover all ramifications and potentialities of the project and examine both B.C. government's argument for and the federal government's case against the plan.

By TOM GOULD, Times Legislative Reporter
The proposed construction of a water storage dam at Castlegar Narrows, at the foot of Arrow Lakes, by Kaiser Aluminum Co. is developing into one of the hottest political issues in decades.

In Victoria and Ottawa, legal authorities are thumbing through musty law books, politicians are penning speeches, U.S. businessmen, hydraulic engineers, construction officials, and the man-in-the-street are becoming embroiled in the controversy.

Simply, the water storage proposal is this:

Kaiser plans construction of a $25,000,000 low-level dam on B.C. soil to hold 3,000,000 acre-feet of water at the Arrow Lakes high-water mark.

The dam would enable the water flow down the Columbia to be regulated; it would ensure a year-round supply of water to generating plants on the U.S. side of the international boundary. As a result, manufacturing plants in the north-west states would be guaranteed a year-round, uninterrupted supply of electricity.

In return for the water storage, the provincial treasury would receive 20 per cent of the power generated in existing downstream power houses, or, if B.C. industries could not use the power—cash. In addition, the Kaiser interests would pay an estimated $275,000 annually in fees and taxes. Value of the 20 per cent of generated power has been established at $1,000,000.

Water pouring out of Arrow Lakes runs through the U.S. at the present time, but unless the flow can be regulated, huge amounts are wasted during high-water periods, and the U.S. generating plants cannot operate at peak capacity on a 12-month basis.

U.S. Ship Breaking Open
840 Miles Off Flattery

The Victoria-based weathership St. Catharines left her assigned position on Station "Papa," far out in the Pacific, at 10 a.m. this morning to rush to the aid of a U.S. freighter.

The 7,000-ton Liberty-type S.S. P & T Trader cracked her hull in high seas and a North Pacific gale early today.

Her captain has radioed that emergency repairs were made, but the ship was barely making enough headway to keep into the wind.

However, St. Catharines this morning was fighting her way through heavy seas to stand by the damaged ship.

Messages picked up here by Gordon Head wireless indicate the weathership likely will stand by pending the arrival of two U.S. coast guard cutters rushing to her aid.

Coast Guard Requested Aid

The coast guard requested aid from St. Catharines, reported to be about 30 miles from P & T Trader, which is about 840 miles west by north of Cape Flattery. The cutter Klamath was dispatched from Seattle to meet the freighter.

Coast guard officials said there was "no immediate danger." However, at press time the ship was still bucking heavy seas and winds of 30 miles per hour. The barometer was still falling, indicating rougher weather to come.

The coast guard said the first distress call from P & T Trader reported a nine-foot-long crack, extending from the hatch combing and down three side plates.

A later message said the crew had welded angle irons across the crack inside the hull.

The ship reported the crack was "working" (showing movement under the battering of the sea), but was not increasing in size.

Owned by Pope & Talbot Inc., San Francisco, she was en route to Yaquina Bay, Ore., from Japan, and is in ballast.

The local weather office received its last report from St. Catharines at 10 a.m., just before she left station. Winds were reported as having dropped to about 20 miles per hour, but a deep low pressure area extends over the eastern Pacific.

In January, 1952, Stonetown, sister weathership to St. Catharines, took part in a vain hunt for survivors of the sunken freighter Pennsylvania, which was of similar construction to P & T Trader.

Pennsylvania sustained a cracked hull in heavy seas. At first she reported "no immediate danger," but with dramatic suddenness her wireless operator sent the message, "Leaving now."

An intensive search over raging seas located floating debris and wreckage. But no lifeboats or survivors were ever found. Forty-six were aboard Pennsylvania when she went down.

A total of 48 officers and crew are reported in P & T Trader.

Russia Plans Defense Alliance
As Counterpart to West's NATO

MOSCOW (UP)—There were increasing signs today the Soviet Union was preparing to set up a defense alliance of east European nations to counteract NATO.

Diplomatic sources said the Soviet was expected to call a conference of East European nations here Nov. 29 if the western nations reject the Kremlin's invitation to an all-European security conference, as expected.

(Communist broadcasts from Prague, Warsaw, Budapest and Bucharest said the satellite nations of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, and Romania already had agreed to send delegates to the Soviet-proposed conference.)

Diplomatic sources speculated the East European conference would result in some sort of east European collective security pact formalizing the already intimate political and military relations between Russia and the east European nations.

Trade Union Central Council, made it clear today that a "defense alliance" was in the works when it published an article by S. Vasilev, secretary of Moscow regional peace committee, saying:

"Creation of a narrow military grouping of several west European states, the chief military force of which would be a West German army having Revanchist aggressive aims, can cause creation of a defense alliance of peace-loving European peoples to ensure their security."
